QUITS PRISON; DRIVING HOME

Coming Home—Boston's mayor, James Michael Curley, will be home for Thanksgiving dinner with his family. His mail fraud sentence was commuted today by President Truman, and the 73-year-old politician was released this afternoon from the federal prison at Danbury, Ct.

Meyers' Deals Hit $10,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Gen. Bennett Meyers' involved transactions in government bonds were detailed today as Chairman Tobey (R.) of New Hampshire, of the Senate banking committee, promised an investigation to "stop this joyriding in government securities." Testimony concerning about $4,000,000 in bond dealings was brought out in public hearings into affairs of the retired former deputy chief of the Air Forces procurement but committee records list transactions exceeding $10,000,000.

Information on loans made to Meyers by the Cleveland Trust Co. and the general's million-dollar deals in bonds have been relayed to Tobey's group by the Senate investigating committee, which dug it up.

Tobey said his committee, "after the first of the year, will look into not only the Meyers deals, but into the buying of government bonds in general."

"What has happened doesn't please me," Tobey said, "and we intend to take such action as necessary."

EXCEEDS $10,000,000

Official records of the war investigating committee show that Meyers bought and sold more than $10,000,000 in government bonds, which paid from 2 1/4 to 2 1/2 per cent interest, financed by loans from the Cleveland firm. Meyers paid 1 to 1 1/4 per cent to the bank for the loans.

Meyers testified he had paper profits of $80,000 but "that capital gain is substantially washed up; right now it is just about even."

A committee investigator said the official records showed this picture:

Meyers operated through two accounts at the Cleveland bank—one established with his wife, and another, termed the AID account, described as a joint venture, and named after the first letters of the names of his children: Arnold, Ida, Jr. and Damon.

Meyers invested $75,000 in the AID account. Blieriot H. Lamarre, $51.50 a week president of Aviation Electric Corp., testified he put up $20,000 of this amount and was to draw 10 per cent interest.

BORROWED FROM BANK

The bank loaned $2,035,135.32 to the AID account Feb. 15, 1946, and Meyers with the $75,000, purchased $2,110,135.32 in bonds. His note to the bank was renewed several times and last Aug. 8, the committee aide said, Meyers owed a balance of $2,000,000 and the bank held the bonds as security.

The joint account with Meyers' wife was started in June, 1944, with $50,000. Half of this, the committee records show, came from Meyers' wife and the remainder from Robert Cuse, Jersey City, N. J., and owner of the Vimalert Co. there.

Cuse testified he loaned $25,000 to Meyers and that two weeks later his firm was awarded its first Air Forces contract, for $500,000.

Meyers used his joint account at that time to purchase $2,050,000 in bonds, borrowing $2,000,000 from the bank.

On Jan. 15, 1945, Meyers put up an additional $10,000 and purchased another $1,000,000 in bonds. He sold $2,000,000 worth in August, 1945, and in September purchased $500,000 worth.

Other transactions included a $500,000 purchase in October, 1945, and a purchase of $1,500,000 and sale of $1,000,000 the following month. He sold $500,000 worth in September, 1945, and sold $50,000 and bought $80,000 last June.

Island Search Fails to Reveal Ship Survivors

OAKLAND, Nov. 26 (AP)—Comdr. James Jensen, Coast Guard operations officer at Ketchikan, Alaska, told the Oakland Tribune in a radio telephone conversation today that 12 men had been landed on Hippa Island but had failed in an hour and a half to find any survivors of the wrecked transport, Clarksdale Victory.

"The fact no survivors have been found," he said, "does not necessarily mean there are none. The island is heavily wooded."

The newspaper said the Coast Guard had two cutters at the scene of the wrecked ship which split yesterday. In all, he said, 25 to 30 men would be put ashore to search for the 51 persons aboard the ship when it foundered in rough seas.

Jensen said there was a possibility the missing stern of the ship had floated away, carrying some of the men aboard the ship.

Two Coast Guard amphibian planes and two Royal Canadian amphibian planes were to scour the calming seas.

No N. E. Men in Crew Of Grounded Transport

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Army Port of Embarkation released the names of 51 of the crew members of the grounded Army transport Clarksdale Victory today. Most of the crewmen are from West Coast cities. None are from New England.

France Throws 19 Russians Out in Move to End Strikes

PARIS, Nov. 26 (AP)—France announced today the expulsion of 19 Russians for interference in French affairs as one step toward solving strikes now involving 2,000,000 men. Premier Robert Schuman and his cabinet drew up other proposals in a final settlement offer for the strikers.

Violence flared in several regions. Police battled some 20,000 demonstrating strikers in central Lyon and user tear gas to disperse mob which attempted to march on the government offices.

The Russians were taken by bus to the frontier of the Soviet occupation zone of Germany. At least four of the 19 were members of a group called "The Soviet Patriotic Union."

The announcement said most of the 19 were White Russians who became Soviet citizens after the liberation of France.

Russia's Paris embassy will officially notified of the expulsion. Arkadii Boudakov, Soviet press attache, told a news conference "the Soviet Patriotic Union" was founded under French laws after the Germans were driven out and the Soviet government issued a decree July 14, 1946, allowing its members to recover Russian citizenship.

The Union published a paper called "The Soviet Patriot."

Boudakov said that during the Nazi occupation of France, and especially "after the German aggression against Russia, most of the Russian refugees took a patriotic attitude toward the U.S.S.R. and the army."

SWOOP DOWN ON REDS

National Security Police inspectors swooped down on the homes of the Russians Tuesday morning.

The action followed by a few days a raid on a Russian repatriation camp outside Paris, where police seized a small quantity of arms and removed a woman and her three children.

In Paris, additional Mobile Guards and police were placed around railway stations as trains continued to move on some lines in defiance of a general strike called by the National Federation of Railroad Workers.

Finns Seek End of Tieup Threatening Isolation

HELSINKI, Finland, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Finnish government began new conferences with a committee of civil servants today in an effort to break a strike—for higher pay—which has stopped trains, closed schools, grounded planes, tied up ships and severed almost every connection between Finland and the outside world.

Forty thousand civil officials in every branch of government service, except police and defense, joined the work stoppage, which began at midnight despite a stern warning broadcast by Prime Minister Mauno Pelkkaia, who said the strikers were risking loss of their jobs.

P. O. Reminder on Ban On Tobacco to Europe

Postmaster Patrick J. Connelly today warned that packages containing cigarettes or other tobacco products will not be accepted for mail delivery to Army personnel in Germany, France and Austria. The postmaster said that despite repeated warnings that such items are prohibited, people continue to mail them.

AERIAL DOLLAR

SHANGHAI, Nov. 26 (AP)—The Chinese dollar dropped to a new low of $145,000 to one U. S. dollar today on the black market.

Curley Free, Again Vows Innocence As He Speeds Home

By FRANK REILLY

Mayor James M. Curley was released from the Danbury, Ct., federal prison at 12:25 this afternoon by a presidential commutation of his six-to-eighteen-month sentence which restored his civil rights automatically and left on parole conditions hanging over him. Haggard of face, pale and so eager to leave he had not waited for the ministrations of the prison barber, Curley declared he had been wrongfully deprived of his personal liberty but expressed gratitude to all who had interceded for him.

MRS. JAMES M. CURLEY
Awaits Mayor's Return

The mayor left for Boston in an automobile containing his son, Leo; his secretary, Joseph J. Connors, and Peter J. Allen, chairman of the assessors, who was at the wheel.

President Truman signed the commutation order only two hours previously upon the recommendation of Atty.-Gen. Tom Clark. The President also freed Donald Wakefield Smith, former member of the National Labor Relations Board, who was convicted with Curley of mail fraud charges.

Shortly after Curley was released, Mrs. Curley received a telephone call at their Jamaica-way home, hastened through the back door to avoid reporters and entered a car in which she was believed heading for a meeting with her husband on the road.

Curley himself succeeded in leaving the prison without the knowledge of several score newspaper, magazine and radio reporters and photographers who had been keeping vigil at the front gate.

HEADED FOR JAMAICAWAY
The automobile containing his party left by a rear driveway, where only two photographers had been stationed on a just-in-case basis.

However, Allen pulled to a stop. The mayor, who was wearing dark glasses, told the cameramen:

"I do not care to pose, I am going right through to the Jamaica-way. My attorney is meeting the press out front."

Almost simultaneously, Atty. Samuel Nesson, former city censor and for many years a close friend of the mayor, appeared at the front gate with Atty. Walter I. Sundlin of Providence. Sundlin represented Curley and the Massachusetts Citizens' Committee which had worked for the mayor's release.

He distributed a typewritten statement bearing Curley's signature and stating:

"There is nothing I can say at this time, except that I was the victim of a professional confidence man and am absolutely innocent of the charge that brought about my confinement."

"I was most wrongfully deprived of my personal liberty. I want to thank all those who persistently strove for my release because they were convinced a great wrong had been done to me. I appreciate the action taken by the President of the United States. I thank all who have stood by me during this trying period."

At City Hall, where the Mayor's friends were preparing a warm welcome for him, it was learned they did not expect him there this afternoon but that some of those high in his official family will confer with him tonight or tomorrow.

It was widely rumored today that he will be back in the Mayor's office very soon.

Under the law, he can resume his post at once if he chooses, and temporary Mayor Hynes will return to his career post as city clerk. Both have been drawing the mayoral salary of $20,000 a year during Curley's imprisonment but Curley had directed that his be given to charity.

HYNES' STATEMENT

Hynes said:

"The news of Mayor Curley's release must be most pleasing and gratifying to his family at this Thanksgiving season. I hope that on his return he will find the city operating in an efficient and progressive manner."

Gov. Bradford, when asked if he planned to see "the mayor," replied, "Which one? I have no plans to see any of them."

As the word swiftly circulated throughout the city, messenger boys began arriving at the Curley home with wires of congratulations and many flowers.

His son, George, city director of celebrations, said he planned to supervise one tonight for the Curley family.

Among those who had worked for the mayor's release were Cong. John W. McCormack and

Peeping Tom Case Stumps N. J. Court

SUMMIT, N. J., Nov. 26 (INS)—The case of the millionaire accused of peeping at two beautiful ladies as they prepared to bathe had New Jersey's Blackstones stumped today.

Atty. Charles Milton, counsel for Jean J. Brodbeck middle-aged millionaire, asked dismissal of charges against Brodbeck stating that New Jersey statutes do not cover peeping unless the peeper is drunk or obscene.

Atty. Martin B. O'Connor, representing beautiful Mrs. Marjorie Hayes and her 16-year-old daughter, Jay, a model, reluctantly agreed. So did town Solicitor Triolo, of Summit, N. J. Police Judge Bierman asked both sides to submit briefs in 10 days and reserved decision.

Brodbeck was arrested after Mrs. Hayes, wearing a sheer black negligee, grabbed a gun and held him for police.

Mrs. Hayes said her daughter was even more scandalously clad when they saw Brodbeck peeping at them through the window of their boudoir.

Brodbeck said he was just taking an after-dinner constitutional.

Hynes Has Problems For Curley Decision

Acting Mayor Hynes announced today as he awaited Mayor Curley's arrival that he had held in abeyance for Curley's decisions all matters involving large expenditures or important issues.

Good Weather For Thanksgiving

New Englanders can expect "pretty good weather" for Thanksgiving Day, the weather bureau said today.

There is a chance for some snow flurries in the higher elevations of the three northern states and possibly in the Berkshires during the day, but otherwise it probably will be sunny with about a 40 degree temperature.

It will be a little cooler in northern New England, where some cloudiness may be expected.

Friday will be about the same kind of day, the forecaster said.

One of the foremost of these, Hynes said, is the preliminary budget for 1948, which he hopes to discuss with Curley at once.

Another concerns voting machines which would entail expenditures totaling as much as $750,000.

Hynes said that in expectation Curley would be released he had taken no final action on bids for rubbish and ash disposal contracts or the 1948 appropriations for hospitals, welfare, the fire department, and other divisions of the municipal setup.

"I am awaiting a call from the mayor," Hynes added, "I expect he will be in Friday."

He estimated the total financial representation of matters held for Curley's action would be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

MRS. OLIVIA LYMAN

Vincent Club Wife Loses 2d Harvard Mate

Mrs. Olivia Morgan Hallowell Lyman, Vincent Club member, who shed one Harvard clubman in Dedham probate court in 1940, today was shed by another Harvard clubman, Ronald T. Lyman, Jr., Beacon st., Back Bay, a partner in the investment firm of Scudder, Stevens & Clark. He was granted an uncontested divorce for cruelty.

Ronald T. Lyman, Jr.

As a bride, Lyman testified before Judge Frederick J. Dillon in probate court here, she was congenial and they were happy, but when he was discharged from the service as a Navy commander and came home, she found her changed. "She began bickering," he said, "she cursed and lost her temper before others."

Not the least of his embarrassment was caused when she spat in his face, privately, this time, while he was completing a business transaction with her. "I asked her to sign a routine proxy in connection with securities she held," Lyman stated, "She signed and asked me what the income was. I told her $150 a year."

"She said, 'Oh, that crummy account,' and spat in my face." This June, the investment broker continued, at a party for her brother, who was about to be married, she asked him for $10 to tip an accordion player. He gave it to her, he said, and a short time later she asked him for another $10, which he refused.

"She said she would hit me," said Lyman. "She did."

Mrs. Lyman, who married Alfred Bowditch Hallowell in 1936 and divorced him in 1940, gave up to Lyman custody of her three children by him, with the proviso she have them from June 15 to Sept. 15 each year and "at other reasonable times." The children are Elizabeth, 5; Jennifer, 3, and Mabel, 2.

She had one child, a daughter now 9, by Hallowell.

A stipulation of the divorce granted Lyman states that he and his ex-wife agree not to restrain each other's liberty. For alimony, she will get $400 a year.

Trio Doomed to Chair For Attack on Girl, 19

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 26 (AP)—Three Negroes were sentenced to death in the electric chair after a criminal court jury found them guilty of the rape of a 19-year-old white girl here last August.

Judge Charles Gilbert said the verdict made unnecessary other trials at which the Negroes were to face charges of raping two other white women.

Austrian Treaty Given First Place On Big 4 Agenda

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—French sources said the Foreign Ministers Council agreed today to place the Austrian treaty at the top of their agenda. The council approved the suggestion by French Foreign Minister Bidault to take up the question of the Austrian treaty and then send it to their deputies, who are considering an accord in the light of French proposals on the German assets issue.

East Boston Wife Asks Annulment

Her husband, with whom she eloped to Seabrook, N. H., last June with her mother as chaperon, never lived with her and did not consider they were legally married, Mrs. Leonora Riggi, of Princeton st., East Boston, testified in Suffolk Probate Court today as she sought an annulment of the marriage.

Her husband, Ralph, of Saratoga st., East Boston, did not contest the petition but sat in the courtroom and listened.

Mrs. Riggi testified she had kept company with her husband and they had planned to wed but suddenly he asked her to elope with him to New Hampshire, voicing no objection at including her mother in the party.

They returned to Boston and he left her, telling her the next day he had changed his mind and felt that the civil ceremony was not binding.

Later, she said, he agreed to a church wedding but, after all arrangements had been made, changed his mind again.

Judge Frederick J. Dillon took the case under advisement.

Woman Coat Thief Gets Holiday Break

Mrs. Margaret Dean, 22, of Washington st., South End, whose life has been a rock one in recent months, was given Thanksgiving clemency by Judge Joseph Riley in Municipal court today when she pleaded guilty to larceny of a fur coat.

Sgt. Charles W. Hewitt, of the Warren ave. station, prosecuting, came to her defense after she entered the plea. He told Judge Riley her husband was in the house of correction and that she had just got out of the hospital.

When she returned home, Hewitt said, she found her furniture had been repossessed.

She went then to the home of a friend, saw a fur coat owned by the friend's daughter and took it. Judge Riley placed her on straight probation for six months.

Zero in Midwest, 84 at Miami

By the Associated Press. Temperatures dropped to below zero in parts of the midwest and hit new lows in some sections today as cool weather continued over a wide area.

The mercury touched 7 below at Grand Forks, N. D., 6 at Pembina, N. D. and was below zero in parts of northern Minnesota. Chicago's 15 above was the lowest there this season.

Temperatures were near normal in southern Florida, most of Texas, in the West plains states and also on the Pacific Coast.

Noxon Prosecutor Alberti to Bench

Appointment of Dist Atty. Charles R. Alberti of Berkshire County as judge of the Central Berkshire District Court was submitted to the executive council today by Gov. Bradford.

Alberti gained state-wide recognition for his prosecution of John F. Noxon, of Pittsfield, on a charge of murder in the electrocution death of his infant, mentally deficient son. Only recently Alberti had declared his opposition to a pardon request for Noxon, now serving a life sentence in State Prison.

The council approved two Thanksgiving pardons recommended by Gov. Bradford and certified the election of Sen. President Donald W. Nicholson as successor to the late Charles T. Gifford in the ninth congressional district.

The Alberti appointment, in which he was named to succeed the late Judge Charles L. Hibbard, was the one of several submitted to the council for approval today.

David M. Brackman of Roxbury, former member of the State Public Utilities Commission, was named again as a member of that body to fill the place of Francis McKeown of Springfield, who is retiring because of health.

Charles J. Kulikowski of South Hadley was appointed clerk of the Northampton district court; Dr. Howard M. Kemp of Greenfield was named medical examiner for the eastern Franklin district and George C. Parsons of Ipswich was reappointed as chief of inspections in the Public Safety Department board of standards.

The council will act on the appointments at its next meeting. In the Thanksgiving pardon cases, the governor withdrew one of three which he had recommended to the council last week when it met in Plymouth.

No explanation was given for the withdrawal of the recommendation for a pardon for William A. McDonald, 72, who was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1913 for the slaying of his wife that year as she was returning home from church.

The council approved a pardon under parole conditions for Lorenzo Scola, 57, sentenced to life in 1937 for the fatal stabbing of Anthony Malhado, a fellow fisherman, during an argument over money in Chatham.

In the case of John Ferguson, 59, of Forest Hills, for whom the governor recommended a pardon, the Council voted to commute his life term to 21 years. He was sentenced in 1933 to a life term as an habitual criminal.

The Council also stipulated he should not be released until arrangements had been made for his deportation to his native Germany.

In its official tabulation of the Ninth Congressional district vote in the recent special election, the council announced that Sen. Nicholson had received 28,914 votes to give him a plurality of 7750 over Rep. Jacinto F. Diniz, of New Bedford, who had a total of 21,164.

Nicholson's resignation was expected later today, prior to his departure for Washington to be sworn into the House. Sen. Harris S. Richardson, of Winchester, is expected to succeed him as the Senate head.

King, Hope Quips Steal Royal Film Show in London

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—King George VI watched speculatively last night while comedian Bob Hope ran through the pages of an autograph book which was Hollywood's wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth.

"He's looking for his own picture," the Monarch quipped.

The King traded wisecracks with the British-born American comedian at the royal command performance of "The Bishop's Wife." Their exchange—and the personalities in attendance—stole the spotlight from the film itself.

The picture, exempt from the new 75 per cent British tax on American films because it was shown for the benefit of the cinematograph trade benevolent fund, raised 25,000 pounds ($100,000) or more from the 2000 persons who paid up to $210 for seats. It will be shown tonight at a Liverpool benefit, but the British public in general will not get to see it, because of the tax situation.

The press commented sparsely on the picture. Commentators were more interested in the fact that 17-year-old Princess Margaret appeared in public with young King Michael of Romania for the first time, and in King George's exchange with Hope.

Hope handed the album of signed photographs to Princess Margaret, to be delivered to her elder sister. The King asked whether Bing Crosby's autograph was in it.

"Yes," Hope replied. "He put three crosses. You see he can't write."

Queen Elizabeth smiled. "I think it is wonderful of Americans to have come all this way for our British film charity," she said.

Among those featured in the stage show were screen stars Robert Montgomery, Loretta Young, Alexis Smith and her husband, Craig Stevens, Anna Neagle, Kieron Moore, Rex Harrison, Lilli Palmer, John Mills, Patricia Roc, Ann Todd, Margaret Lockwood, Sir Laurence Olivier, Vivien Leigh, Carole Landis and David Niven. The theme was British-American fellowship.

The guests also saw a half-hour color film of Princess Elizabeth's wedding to Prince Philip and got an unexpected laugh from it in a yarn of young Prince Michael of Kent, one of the royal pages.

Police restrained a crowd of 4000 which delayed the royal party briefly en route to the theater.

As for the picture, starring Cary Grant, Miss Young and Niven, the Times found it a Christmas story which "has the merit of making virtue attractive," but "without that hush and expectancy which lend poetry to what otherwise might be mere extravagance of fancy."

The Daily Telegraph found the Samuel Goldwyn production "light, sentimental, amusing." The Daily Herald said, while it was a polished production, "the story can hardly appeal to everyone."

Royal Couple Back in London Preceding Visit to Scotland

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip returned to Buckingham Palace today from Romsey, in southern England, where they spent the first part of their honeymoon.

Court sources said the two were expected to leave soon for Birkhall, near Balmoral Castle in Scotland.

They are expected to spend Christmas with the royal family at Sandringham, near London.

Elizabeth and Philip had spent six days at Broadlands, the Romsey estate of Philip's uncle, Earl Mountbatten.

A single policeman accompanied them as they left, and only a handful of people watched at the gate as the royal couple drove out, waving good-by.

The Princess said today she and the Prince wished to spend the rest of their honeymoon "absolutely to themselves."

Her secretary wrote Lord Aberdeen, lord lieutenant of Aberdeenshire, where the honeymoon house at Birkhall is situated, that the couple "are very anxious that the whole time they are in Aberdeenshire... shall be observed as an entirely private visit."

"They do not desire any formalities, and do not wish to be received on arrival in Aberdeen or anywhere else in the county. They do wish to be absolutely by themselves and hope there will be no crowds of sightseers."

N. E. to Share Thanksgiving Bounty With Europe's Hungry

Boston and New England families will join tomorrow in sharing their blessings with thousands in starving Europe when they "seat" a "Silent Guest" at their dinner tables. The spirit of Thanksgiving will be limited not only to the traditional offering of thanks to Almighty God for protecting the people of this land and guiding them through troubled times but will be sent overseas to bring happiness and a feeling of thanksgiving to others less fortunate.

The American "Silent Guest" committee at Plymouth reported today they had received thousands of dollars in contributions which will be sent to relieve hunger-distress in Europe. William Brewster, treasurer of the committee, stated that 1000 letters containing more than $3000 had been received in a single day.

CONTRIBUTE COST

Under the plan, New Englanders invited to today's "joyful holiday" a "silent guest" and the estimated cost of the "visitors' meal" was sent to the committee, for distribution by CARE.

Meanwhile, Boston's own needy will be fed at Thanksgiving dinners throughout the city by organizations dedicated to helping the friendless, the aged and the underprivileged. In Catholic and Protestant churches, special services were conducted.

VETERANS REMEMBERED

Throughout New England, open house will be held at all veterans' hospitals, with entertainers, Red Cross workers and others taking part in gala programs. The Garden clubs of Massachusetts have decorated the West Roxbury and Bedford hospitals. Music and movies will feature most programs.

A dance will be sponsored at Bedford tonight by American Legion Auxiliary members. A variety show sponsored by the Jewish War Veterans' Auxiliary will be presented at Cushing General Hospital this evening, with sketch artists visiting the wards tomorrow.

With all schools and colleges emptied of their students for the holiday week-end the Boston and Maine, New Haven and Boston and Albany railroads placed extra trains in service today.

To provide for a heavy travel load, the New Haven R. R. added 60 extra sections to its regular shore line expresses. Extra buses and street cars were also operating today and airlines scheduled extra flights.

Seamen of all nations will be served free dinners at Boston

Some 100 screaming co-eds, yesterday, raced through a fraternity house as the sleep-groggily male students watched with amazement.

Defense Group Urges Quick Training Action

A strong demand for the immediate institution of universal military training to guard the national security was sent out today by veteran, civic and patriotic organizations following the formal organization of the Massachusetts branch of the National Security Committee in Boston.

Pledging their belief in the necessity for a vigilant national defense, the committee attacked anti-defense organizations which weaken the security of America.

Speakeading this outspoken call for American preparedness was Robert Cutler, president of the Old Colony Trust Co. and national treasurer of the security committee, who addressed 100 members representing 62 veteran, civic and patriotic organizations.

Speaking of those who opposed universal military training, he stated that daily 5000 requests to keep America weak were sent through the mail by the anti-defense organizations.

UMT legislation would have to be passed during this session of Congress or it will never be passed, he said. A strong America is needed. "to back up Secretary Marshall when he talks to those bloody cut-throats—the Russians."

He pointed out that the aims of the National Security Committee was to initiate, co-ordinate and support plans for effective defense of the nation through UMT, scientific research, and national industrial mobilization.

Its purpose, he emphasized, was to organize a State branch which would serve as a model for other state branches throughout the country.

Owen J. Robert, former associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court and chairman of the national organization, appointed Col. Clement Kennedy, Swampscott, commander of the Military Order of World Wars and president of the New Ocean House, as chairman of the first state branch asked to organize.

Other officers appointed were John C. Kelly and Robert Cutler; Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., treasurer; Frederick L. Dabney, assistant treasurer; and Roger W. Cutler, Jr., secretary.

Kennedy announced that plans were formulated to organize chapters in Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Brockton, Taunton, Fall River, New Bedford, Fitchburg, Gardner, Worcester, Pittsfield, North Adams, Springfield, Northampton, Chicopee and Holyoke.

Acting Mayor Hynes, who attended, stated he heartily endorsed the Bay State security committee.

VFW Asks Training As Check to Russia

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 — Headed "No Alternative," the official magazine of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Foreign Service, carries this editorial in its December issue, mailed today to its nearly 2,000,000 members:

"Thanks to the greedy Nazi-like expansionist policies of Soviet Russia, it is difficult to believe that any group of American citizens can continue to oppose early adoption of universal military training.

"Soviet leaders have been telegraphing their threatening punches with such reckless ferocity it is doubtful that serious opposition to universal military training still exists in the U. S.

"Today Russia makes no bones about its ambitions to dominate the world through the spread of Communism.

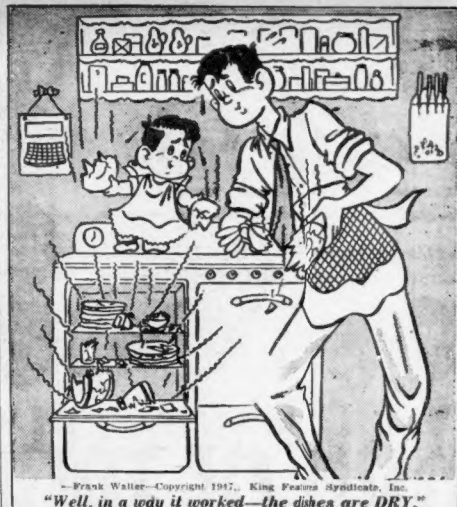

"As a result Americans must accept the conviction that World War III may strike without warning at any moment.

"We made the tragic mistake of refusing to take Hitler's threat of world conquest seriously.

"We would be downright stupid if we should make the same disastrous error with Joe Stalin.

"Let's face facts. "The danger of open warfare with Russia will increase just as long as we neglect to keep ourselves inviolable against attack."

TO ACT ON P. O. HEAD
WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) President Truman sent to the Senate today the nomination of Jesse M. Donaldson of Illinois to be postmaster general.

Solon Calls UMT Boon to World

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Universal military training in America will be a blessing to all the peaceable peoples of the world, Sen. Gordon (R.) of Oregon, declared following a tour of Western Europe, Greece, Turkey and the Near East.

The senator asserted: "The knowledge that one strong, militarily prepared nation committed to self-government still exists in this world would be in itself an inestimable help to those people in their own efforts to retain self-government."

To Eat 1st Holiday Dinner in 26 Years

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 26 (AP)—Mickey Schuster, 29, tomorrow will eat his first Thanksgiving dinner in 26 years.

The Youngstown, O., furniture worker has returned home following an operation here which opened his esophagus—sealed for 26 years after Mickey swallowed lye as a child.

Before a surgeon lifted his stomach and attached it to his esophagus above the closed portion, Mickey had to take all his nourishment through a hole in his stomach.

He said his dinner would include roast duck, candied sweet potatoes and pumpkin pie. He added:

"Just think, I've never tasted any of that food. Boy, I can hardly wait!"

R. I. Seeks to End Viking Church Row

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 26 (AP)—Newport today started to find out whether it has a 950-year-old Viking church or a windmill dating from the 17th century.

The Park Commission agreed to supervise the excavation of the town's stone tower, called by architects "the most puzzling single building in the United States."

For more than 100 years, archaeologists have been wrangling about the age of the landmark. Some claim it is the nave of a church built by Norsemen in the 11th century. Others say it is the ruins of a mill that Rhode Island's first governor built around 1639.

Longfellow mentioned the structure in his "Skeleton in Armor."

EXPERIENCE—and perfect coaching—have taught Blanche Christian the finer points of skiing... from a speedy "schuss" to a graceful "stem christiana."

CAMELS ARE THE CHOICE OF EXPERIENCE WITH ME!

More people are smoking CAMELS than ever before!

Let your "T-Zone" tell you why!

T for Taste...T for Throat... that's your proving ground for any cigarette. See if Camels don't suit your "T-Zone" to a "T."

AS A SKIER, lovely Blanche Christian is "one in a million"—an expert with wide experience, and a ski instructor in leading resorts. As a smoker, she is one of millions who had a most revealing experience during the wartime cigarette shortage.

"When cigarettes were so hard to get," says Miss Christian, "I smoked many different brands. Naturally, I compared them...for flavor, mildness, coolness...for quality. I learned by experience that Camels suit me best!"

Like Miss Christian, thousands and thousands of smokers tried and compared, and found Camels the "choice of experience."

Try Camels. Let your own experience... your "T-Zone"... tell you why more people are smoking Camels than ever before.

10 Tankers Sold as N. E. Shivers

By WILLIAM P. FLYHE

Boston Evening America Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—New England will have to shiver while American tankers haul fuel oil to Great Britain, France and Italy, it has been learned. Tankers are being broken out of the reserve fleet, the Maritime Commission announced, but officials said it was doubtful if there would be enough to relieve an acute shortage—or that they could be put into immediate service.

Adm. W. W. Smith, chairman of the Maritime Commission, sent telegrams to all New England governors. He assured them everything possible would be done to see that their fuel demand is met, but explained the decision of tankers to foreigners and the U. S. government need fuel for its far-flung foreign zones of occupation were beyond the commission's control.

Meanwhile, it was learned some 31 of the largest type of tankers have been taken from the active fleet for transfer to the British fleet and 46 are held in reserve for foreign sale.

In a frantic effort to meet the demand of New England the Maritime Commission announced the sale today of 27 Liberty type of tankers to domestic operators to help transport fuel oil from the Gulf ports to the New England zone.

These are small ships and had been previously discarded as unsuited for modern operations.

The commission also announced that 50 of the larger type of tankers would be reactivated and if possible used indirectly to help relieve the New England deficiency.

These ships will be turned over for direct operation under Navy supervision and the Navy will turn over to the Maritime Commission similar ships which it is now using. It is these ships, it was stated, which will be diverted to the New England trade.

It was explained by the Maritime Commission that foreign commitments were made at a time when it was believed there would be a world surplus of tankers, but that the foreign sales had left this nation without sufficient tonnage to supply home needs.

Boston Oil Diverted to Canada Says Oil Man

Nearly 12,000 gallons of kerosene and fuel oil are being drained from the Boston area every week and sold at premium prices in Canada, it was disclosed today by Clyde G. Morrill, executive director of the Independent Oil Men's Ass'n of New England.

Morrill said a Canadian agent is operating here contacting local oil jobbers eager for some extra cash and obtaining about three or four tank truck loads, drawn from the Boston quota, each week. He said the trucks cross the border at Derby Line in Vermont, and for the most part discharge their loads in Sherbrooke, Que.

Morrill said the jobbers, receiving a cent and a cent and a half more a gallon from Canadian buyers, were operating without the knowledge and sanction of the big supplying companies. Oil shipped here, he said, was for the exclusive use of American industrial and household users.

Because of reduced anthracite imports, thousands of kerosene space heaters were recently placed on the market in Canada with the result that the Canadian fuel dealers were faced with the same problem as those in America, Morrill explained.

Without coal and having invested in a new oil burner, many Canadians are willing to pay premium prices for oil and are getting it from American sources, Morrill said. Barge loads are being shipped in the same "unethical" manner from the New York area, and transhipped by truck Buffalo, he said.

Chief reason for the shortage, Morrill declared, was the lack of refinery production. Oil consumption today throughout the nation for all purposes is 5,300,000 barrels as compared with a 4,700,000-barrel average during the war years when thousands of Allied ships and planes were supplied by this nation alone.

With no increase in refinery equipment, due to a steel shortage, there has been an increase of 37 per cent in the number of trucks on the road, 26 per cent more buses, three per cent more pleasure vehicles and 700,000 new oil burners placed in use, Morrill stated.

He said the Maritime Commission was not giving a true picture of the tanker situation, pointing out that several weeks ago the commission admitted that it was able to fill only 113 out of 306 requests from shipping operators for additional vessels.

Thanksgiving Day TURKEY DINNER

REPEATEDLY I HAVE BEEN ASKED

if this year, because of high prices, it will be possible for Waldorf Cafeterias to provide its customers with that usual bang-up Thanksgiving Day dinner for a price under a dollar. You have no idea of the amount of people who look for it every November, and on the holiday, from eleven o'clock in the morning way through to nine in the evening, singly, entire families, and in groups of congenial friends, you see them all gathered around the tables of our dining rooms to enjoy one of our finest special menus of the year.

● And so it gives me a lot of pleasure to be able to say "Yes, positively . . . and not only is it just about the best turkey dinner we have ever served, but the price has been held down within the reach of all folks, at 95 cents."

● I have never seen better turkeys than we have secured this season . . . every one will be tender and sweet. Then there is the Cape Cod cranberry sauce, delicious Hubbard squash from the North Shore, mashed Maine potato, and a big roll and butter. Typically it is a real New England turkey dinner . . . for New England people.

● Dessert . . . you ask? Just about the best, all included in the price of the dinner. You have a choice of either fresh apple pie with our own rich vanilla ice cream . . . squash pie and cheese . . . or hot mince pie with rum custard sauce. And tea or coffee, of course!

● Sounds good, doesn't it? We have to admit it is a wonderful turkey dinner, at a wonderful low price.

Typists Replace Typesetters On Struck Chicago Papers

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (INS)—Chicago's morning newspapers appeared for the first new dress of photoengraving since the printers' strike.

Page forms were cast from typewritten forms with news photos, advertising and all regular features.

Both the Tribune and Sun published two regular editions with replated editions for late news matter.

The papers were curtailed in size as to the number of pages.

The strike of Local 16 of the AFL Typographical Union against Chicago's six major daily newspapers went into its second day with a walkout threatened against five other publications in the Chicago area.

Still threatened by a strike spread were the Chicago Defender, the Hammond, Ind., Times, the Chicago Abendpost, German newspapers, 'The Drivers' Journal and Life Printing and Publishing Co.

John Pich, president of the striking union, indicated yesterday the strike might spread to eight publications. Later, the union announced that three racing newspapers had agreed to terms.

These were the Daily Racing Form, the Bulletin Record Co. and another racing news firm which was not identified.

Peaceful picketing continued around the plants of the six major dailies where the printers walked out Monday night after taking a strike vote.

Besides the Tribune and Sun, the newspapers affected are the Herald-American, Times, Daily News and Journal of Commerce.

Alabama Forgives Fugitive Slayer

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 26 (AP)—Gov. Folsom has cleared the way to freedom for James Robert Collins, fugitive from an Alabama prison in 1936 who was arrested recently in Quakertown, Pa., where he had established himself as a respectable business man.

Folsom announced that extradition proceedings to return Collins to face the remainder of a life sentence for murder were dropped to allow him to "return voluntarily to Alabama" and apply for a pardon as Collins wishes to do.

Since his escape Collins married and became the father of two children. He did not change his name. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1928 as an accomplice in a bank robbery at Citronelle, Ala., in which bank president Claude B. Hurt was killed.

Vets Blamed in VA Insurance Mixup

Replying to the charge made by Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers that his office has some $100,000 of unidentified veterans' insurance remittances, C. H. Nance, deputy administrator of the Veterans Administration's Boston branch, said today that this was due to the careless way in which insurance premiums were sent in by veterans.

He added that unidentified insurance remittances had been reduced by about 50 per cent in the past seven months.

Nance said 500 to 1000 insurance remittances which reach his insurance division daily lack the information necessary to identify them with the accounts for which they are intended.

Diners, Cops See Man Kills Self in Booth

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Nov. 26 (AP)—A number of patrons at a small restaurant here and two policemen who had come to the establishment late last night in answer to a complaint saw the lone occupant of a booth shoot himself through the heart.

The victim, identified as Chester J. Brown, 37, of Stratford, fell dead across a table as policemen moved to take the weapon away from him. They said Brown first had pointed the pistol at them, warning "stand where you are," then turned it on himself as they ignored his threat and stepped forward.

Curley

Robert E. Hannegan, who resigned yesterday as postmaster general. The new chairman of the Democratic national committee, Sen. J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island had been reported as lending his influence to the case shortly before the commutation was granted.

McCormack said in Washington this afternoon, "It pleases me very much."

Twelve hours before the good word came to him at the prison, Curley had heard from fellow prisoners, radio listeners, that it appeared he soon would be free.

"Thank God," he cried.

He had hinted then that he knew Chairman McGrath was working hard for him.

Under the law by which Hynes was made acting mayor, Mayor Curley can go back to his old job immediately or he could take a brief vacation. "But should the mayor take over his old duties only for a day and then decide on a vacation, Hynes would be out and City Council President John B. Kelly would be acting mayor until Curley returns once more.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP) — Commerce Sec. Harriman today asked Congress for limited priority and allocation powers to direct steel to the most essential programs.

Hearst History Test Marks Awaited by Boston Students

While Boston high school history teachers today were busily marking examination papers following the local contest of the Fifth Annual Hearst Newspapers History Awards, high school history students throughout the city were anxiously awaiting their marks.

It is expected that each school will have completed its markings by Monday and will submit its top three to a board of judges who will make the final gradings on papers from all over the city.

The winners, of whom 25 will be selected, will be announced in the Sunday Advertiser Dec. 7, in ample time for the top three winners to be prepared for the national finals to be held in Faneuil Hall, Dec. 10. This exam will be held simultaneously in 12 other key cities throughout the country.

During special periods set aside yesterday during the school day, history students, composed chiefly of senior class members, competed in the quiz under supervision of each competing school's history department heads.

The contest, recognized by national historians as one of the greatest, was based on early American history and also contained questions pertaining to the Constitution of the United States.

Miss Helena Guiney, president of the History Teachers Council of the Boston public high schools, and also head of the history department of Rosindale High School, headed the committee which drew up the questions.

Three Faiths Honor Their War Dead

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Clergymen of three faiths led memorial services today for 4212 dead World War II as the Army transport Robert F. Burns docked at the Brooklyn Army Base with the bodies of the men who fell fighting in Europe.

Some 600 relatives of the dead lined the pier and gazed down at the flag-draped coffins in the open hold of the transport.

The Burns is the third vessel to arrive here with war dead since the Army began the task of bringing back bodies whose return was requested by their next of kin.

After the religious ceremonies scores of mothers remained near the ship, their lips moving in silent prayer.

$20,000 Dedham Bowling Alley Fire

Fire destroyed the Dedham Bowling Alleys and a three-chair barber shop adjoining them in Washington st., that town, this morning, causing damage estimated at more than $20,000.

The building and alleys were owned by Harry Sher of Malden. Flames originated in a hot dog and coffee section of the alleys, sweeping through the 100-year-old two and a half story structure with such speed a general alarm was sounded.

Three youths, Ronald DeShiro, Frank Constantino and Nicholas DePietro, who had reported for work at the alleys, fled without injury. Escaping from the barber-shop were the proprietor, John DeMartino and a customer who was in the chair, Felix Fellini.

ONE SHOT, 3 BIRDS

DENVER, Nov. 26 (AP)—A bird in the hand may be worth two in the bush to most hunters, but J. E. Isenhardt of Denver managed to get all three with one shot while pheasant hunting.

Isenhardt reported to State game and fish officials that he flushed one bird and shot it. His dog, going to retrieve the bird, surprised a second and caught it. A third flew up near by and broke its neck against a farm building.

Dress Up Leftover Turkey

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

LEFTOVER TURKEY DISHES, too, can be spectacular. And this year when fowl and meats of all kinds are more highly valued than ever before, homemakers everywhere will be eager to feature every morsel of turkey in dishes with an unmistakable air of festivity.

To this problem of dramatizing leftover turkey, wine cookery offers an infinite number of solutions, for there is magic in wine which brings out the full delicate flavor of the fowl. Often we find that some of these leftover dishes, prepared with wine, taste even better than they did on the first day's performance.

RAGOUT OF THANKSGIVING FOWL

1/2 tsp. butter or margarine,
1/2 tsp. flour, 1/2 tsp. salt,
2 cups leftover gravy or fresh stock, 1/2 tsp. pepper,
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce,
1/2 cup onion, chopped,
1/2 cup parsley, chopped,
1/2 cup red table wine,
3 cups leftover fowl,
1/2 cup stuffed olives, sliced.
Melt butter or margarine, blend in flour. Add gravy or stock and cook until smooth. (If stock is used, 3 tsp. flour will be necessary.) Add Worcestershire sauce, onion, parsley, salt, pepper and wine to sauce. Arrange slices of leftover fowl and stuffed olives in baking dish. Pour sauce over all and heat thoroughly in 375 deg. F. oven for 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

LEFTOVER FOWL, SAUCE MEXICANA

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 large onion, sliced
1/2 cup green pepper, chopped
2 tsp. flour 1/2 tsp. salt
Dash hot pepper
1 cup tomato, strained
1/2 cup red table wine
Melt butter or margarine and brown the onion and green pepper in the butter. Add the flour and stir until smooth. Add the seasonings and the tomato puree and cook slowly until smooth. Finally, add the wine. Place slices of leftover fowl in casserole. Pour sauce over fowl and heat thoroughly for 20 minutes. Serve very hot.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY LOAF

3 cups leftover roast chicken or turkey, 1/4 cup sherry wine
1 cup soft bread crumbs,
1/4 cup celery, chopped,
2 tsp. salt, 3 whole eggs,
2 tsp. parsley, minced.

Mix ingredients well. Pack into greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for about 40 minutes. Unmold and serve with mushroom sauce made by adding 1/4 cup sherry wine to one can of cream of mushroom soup or with sherry flavored cream gravy. Garnish with spiced peaches and parsley.

TURKEY A LA KING

2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 small can mushrooms, drained 1/2 cups rich milk
1 small onion, chopped
1/4 tsp. flour Salt and pepper
Chopped parsley or pimento
2 cups diced turkey
3 tbsp. sherry wine

Melt butter or margarine in frying pan. Add mushrooms and onion. Let simmer five minutes. Blend in flour, and cook for a minute or two; then slowly add milk, and cook, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Manicure Set For Christmas

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Beauty and Fashion Editor

THE SELF-SUFFICIENT WOMAN is back en masse. Although it was fun while it lasted . . . the day is here when gals must do for themselves . . . not rely wholly on the professionals despite the fact that the luxury of luxury is a yearning to which every one of us gives heart-room and wishful thinking.

Recently we read statistics which disclosed that many more American girls manicure their own petal-pretty fingernails than those who let the experts hold sway . . . and that a preponderant number of women have never seen the inside of a beauty parlor.

Whether it is due to lack of time or lack of the wherewithal is beside the point. Self-sufficiency is for a while, anyway. So let's make the most and best of it. After reading the squib about personally administered manicures . . . the thought came to me . . . but pronto . . . that a girl should have the right tools to work with if the result was to justify the means.

From our own locker of personal equipment and enjoyable experience with it . . . we take the subject of today's discussion. It is a beautifully compact fold-over case containing the necessary manicure cutlery. Ours has seen valiant duty the past year . . . in the office and on our many trips. While time is of the essence with us . . . it can serve as no apology for unkempt-looking hands. So self-sufficiency has come into our life for the personal grooming reason.

INEXPENSIVE; NEATLY PACKED

This fold-over case . . . the model shows it in the accompanying picture . . . comes in varied grain finishes in red, blue lined with red, brown and natural. It contains an implement assortment including hot-forged, precision-ground nail scissors and cuticle scissors, tweezers, cuticle pusher and tempered triple-cut file.

If we didn't own one . . . we'd welcome it any day of the week as a gift . . . Christmas or no. Whether you are gifting someone . . . or just thinking of your own lady-beautiful needs (and who isn't these days of respite return to loveliness), this compact fold-over manicure set is an essential.

And its table of contents . . . as heretofore mentioned . . . lists only the manicure necessities. These are the things the hands must be treated to before the fingernails can take to the glamor of nail lacquer, etcetera.

We don't like to think of it as a gift only. We like to think that every girl who does her own fingernails has it at her beck and call.

For the name of this famous-name, precision manicure implement case, phone the Beauty Department, Liberty 2-4000, any day except Sunday, or write to me, care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Her Kissing Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl friend and I go around with two fellows. My girl friend is very serious about one of them. I like the other as a friend and nothing more.

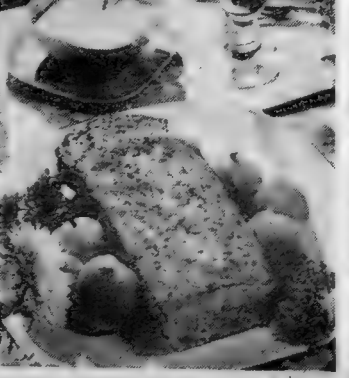

When he tries to kiss me, I push him away and try to explain why I don't want to get serious, but he doesn't understand. He says I am mean and spoiled because I don't want him to kiss me.

I don't want to break off with him, but I don't want to get serious either. What shall I do?

My advice to you is to make it quite plain that if he wishes to go around with you, he will have to treat you the way you want to be treated. If he doesn't, then send him on his way.

More Than One Occasion

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

WOMEN who follow a heavy social schedule always welcome a dress that is capable of playing more than one part. They like to find the sort of dress they're comfortable in because it suits them and the occasion. So much the better if that same dress can be transformed without drastic alteration into an entirely new-looking dress.

To achieve the greatest change, the silhouette must be made into something quite different. Carrie Mun, who designed the dress sketched today, shows how effectively this can be done. She starts out with a dress of classic shape. Its shoulders are moderately broad, their width accentuated by a sideswept bodice design that runs to the outer edge of the shoulder. The dress slips down from the shoulders, folding the waist and hips and tapering to a narrow hemline.

This silhouette is changed completely by the detachable peplum apron that covers the hips. The peplum stands out, giving the dress a rounded hipline. Scalloped bands of lace, the lace appliqued with leaves and stems, cross the peplum in a slanting line. The sleeves are notable; they come just below the elbow and are finished with scallops.

So Those Salem Dames are Better!

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 26 (AP)—Halifax school girls don't like being called "of the beam—definitely squares" in comparison to the school belles of Salem, Mass.

The statement of comparison was made by members of the Queen Elizabeth high school football team here upon returning from the Massachusetts city, where they played an exhibition game.

The gridders faced the cold-shoulder treatment at their own school. The girl students have instituted "man-hating week."

New York detectives were on hand to escort him through the usual customs procedure.

Arthur Bliss Lane, former ambassador to Warsaw, and Mrs. Lane were given special permission to board the Pan-American Constellation on its arrival.

Lane emphasized he was meeting the exiled anti-Communist Polish leader as a friend and not an official.

From our own locker of personal equipment and enjoyable experience with it . . . we take the subject of today's discussion. It is a beautifully compact fold-over case containing the necessary manicure cutlery. Ours has seen valiant duty the past year . . . in the office and on our many trips. While time is of the essence with us . . . it can serve as no apology for unkempt-looking hands. So self-sufficiency has come into our life for the personal grooming reason.

INEXPENSIVE; NEATLY PACKED

This fold-over case . . . the model shows it in the accompanying picture . . . comes in varied grain finishes in red, blue lined with red, brown and natural. It contains an implement assortment including hot-forged, precision-ground nail scissors and cuticle scissors, tweezers, cuticle pusher and tempered triple-cut file.

If we didn't own one . . . we'd welcome it any day of the week as a gift . . . Christmas or no. Whether you are gifting someone . . . or just thinking of your own lady-beautiful needs (and who isn't these days of requisite return to loveliness), this compact fold-over manicure set is an essential.

And its table of contents . . . as heretofore mentioned . . . lists only the manicure necessities. These are the things the hands must be treated to before the fingernails can take to the glamor of nail lacquer, etcetera.

We don't like to think of it as a gift only. We like to think that every girl who does her own fingernails has it at her beck and call.

For the name of this famous-name, precision manicure implement case, phone the Beauty Department, Liberty 2-4000, any day except Sunday, or write to me, care of the Boston American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Her Kissing Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl friend and I go around with two fellows. My girl friend is very serious about one of them. I like the other as a friend and nothing more.

When he tries to kiss me, I push him away and try to explain why I don't want to get serious, but he doesn't understand. He says I am mean and spoiled because I don't want him to kiss me.

I don't want to break off with him, but I don't want to get serious either. What shall I do?

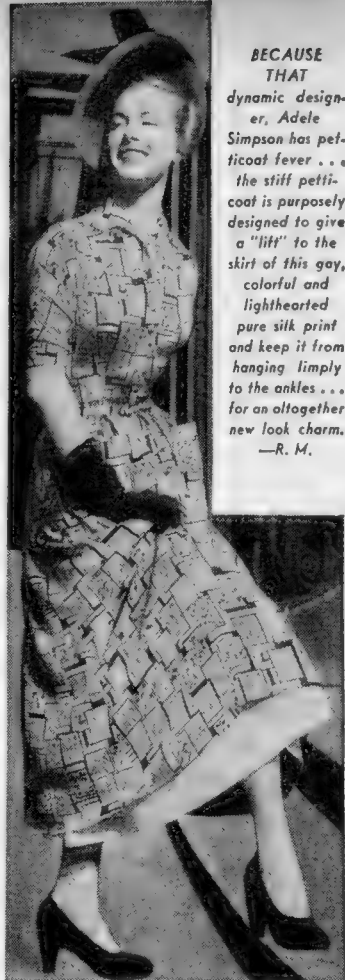

"A CONSTANT READER."

Dear "Constant Reader":

You would be very silly to allow a boy to kiss

CHICKEN OR TURKEY LOAF

BECAUSE THAT dynamic designer, Adele Simpson has petticoat fever . . . the stiff petticoat is purposely designed to give a "lift" to the skirt of this gay, colorful and lighthearted pure silk print and keep it from hanging limply to the ankles . . . for an altogether new look charm.

"IT'S FUN to do your own fingernails . . . whether the need is voluntary or involuntary . . . when such a beautifully compact fold-over case containing an implement assortment requisite to a good manicure is available. Personally administered manicures are no longer chores . . . but the preference of fastidiously-groomed girls who've learned the art well and applied it willingly."

Dress Up Leftover Turkey

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

LEFTOVER TURKEY DISHES, too, can be spectacular. And this year when fowl and meats of all kinds are more highly valued than ever before, homemakers everywhere will be eager to feature every morsel of turkey in dishes with an unmistakable air of festivity.

To this problem of dramatizing leftover turkey, wine cookery offers an infinite number of solutions, for there is magic in wine which brings out the full delicate flavor of the fowl. Often we find that some of these leftover dishes, prepared with wine, taste even better than they did on the first day's performance.

RAGOUT OF THANKSGIVING FOWL

3 tbsp. butter or margarine.
1½ tsp. flour, ¼ tsp. salt.
2 cups leftover gravy or fresh stock.

¼ tsp. pepper.
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce.
1 tbsp. onion, chopped.
1 tsp. parsley, chopped.

½ cup red table wine.
3 cups leftover fowl.

½ cup stuffed olives, sliced.
Melt butter or margarine, blend in flour. Add gravy or stock and cook until smooth. (If stock is used, 3 tsp. flour will be necessary.) Add Worcestershire sauce, onion, parsley, salt, pepper and wine to sauce. Arrange slices of leftover fowl and stuffed olives in baking dish. Pour sauce over all and heat thoroughly in 375 deg. F. oven for 25 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

LEFTOVER FOWL, SAUCE MEXICANA

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 large onion, sliced
½ cup green pepper, chopped
2 tsp. flour ¼ tsp. salt
Dash black pepper

1 cup tomato, strained
½ cup red table wine
Melt butter or margarine and brown the onion and green pepper in the butter. Add the flour and stir until smooth. Add the seasonings and the tomato puree and cook slowly until smooth. Finally, add the wine. Place slices of leftover fowl in casserole. Pour sauce over fowl and heat thoroughly for 20 minutes. Serve very hot.

CHICKEN OR TURKEY LOAF

3 cups leftover roast chicken or turkey, ¼ cup sherry wine.
1 cup soft bread crumbs.
½ cup celery, chopped.
2 tsp. salt. 3 whole eggs.
2 tsp. parsley, minced.

Mix ingredients well. Pack into greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for about 40 minutes. Unmold and serve with mushroom sauce made by adding ¼ cup sherry wine to one can of cream of mushroom soup or with sherry flavored cream gravy. Garnish with spiced peaches and parsley.

TURKEY A LA KING

2 tbsp. butter or margarine
1 small can mushrooms, drained 1½ cups rich milk
1 small onion, chopped
1 tsp. flour Salt and pepper
Chopped parsley or pimento
2 cups diced turkey
3 tbsp. sherry wine

Melt butter or margarine in frying pan. Add mushrooms and onion. Let simmer five minutes. Blend in flour, and cook for a minute or two; then slowly add milk, and cook, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add parsley and turkey and heat gently. Stir in sherry wine and serve in patty shells or on hot buttered toast. Makes four servings.

More Than One Occasion

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

WOMEN who follow a heavy social schedule always welcome a dress that is capable of playing more than one part. They like to find the sort of dress they're comfortable in because it suits them and the occasion. So much the better if that same dress can be transformed without drastic alteration into an entirely new-looking dress.

To achieve the greatest change, the silhouette must be made into something quite different. Carrie Mun, who designed the dress sketched today, shows how effectively this can be done. She starts out with a dress of classic shape. Its shoulders are moderately broad, their width accentuated by a sideswept bodice design that runs to the outer edge of the shoulder. The dress slims down from the shoulders, molding the waist and hips and tapering to a narrow hemline.

This silhouette is changed completely by the detachable peplum apron that covers the hips. The peplum stands out, giving the dress a rounded hipline. Scalloped bands of lace, the lace applied with leaves and stems, cross the peplum in a slanting line. The sleeves are notable; they come just below the elbow and are finished with scallops.

Set for the Turk

Where Is It?

Little Donald MacPhail, 3d, of Jamaica Plain can hardly wait for his first Thanksgiving . . . scheduled to be the eatingest day of his life. He's looking ahead to a full plate, and, judging by the size of the one in front of him, he shouldn't have any complaints at the end of the feast.

Know Need

Three persons who realize the great need of food in Europe, Kathryn M. Hawkins, Clifton, Va., who lived in Switzerland and England; Harriet L. Harry, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., who was born in Germany (left), and Oddvar S. Moe, Norwegian ex-soldier, make donation at Tufts College for "Silent Guest" program for Thanksgiving.

A DAY FOR SHARING

TOMORROW, in all our communities, grateful Americans will join with their families and friends in the ever-joyous celebration of Thanksgiving.

We hope that the whole nation will adopt Governor Robert Bradford's splendid suggestion and that there will be a "silent guest" at every dinner table.

The "silent guest" will be one of the hungry people of Europe, very possibly a little boy or girl who had no part in the recent war but who, none the less, is obliged to suffer its terrible consequences.

Of course, the war victim cannot be personally present, and it is very probable that he will not know what is being done for him here in America.

But the money that would be spent for the "silent guest's" food can be set aside and donated for European relief.

Thus, in the true and traditional spirit of Thanksgiving, each and every one of us will share our bounty with these to whom even a crust of bread is the symbol of new life and hope.

And we may be very sure that God will bless us for it.

A Challenge

THE PROBABILITY of a disastrous fuel oil famine in New England is a challenge to every Massachusetts Senator and Representative.

Only by developing and using the hydroelectric power of our rivers can we prevent these constant petroleum shortages.

We have no oil in any of our six States. All that we consume has to be imported from distant areas.

But in New England and in the areas immediately adjacent there is more than enough NEGLECTED hydroelectric power to heat and light every home and operate every farm and factory for a fraction of the cost of oil or coal.

It is the duty of all Senators and Representatives who are more concerned with the people's safety and prosperity than with the power trust's selfish propaganda to file AT LEAST ONE BILL providing for the construction of new hydroelectric plants and the modernization of old ones.

The Senator or Representative who comes from a city or town containing a dam or canal system built a century ago and who neglects to file a bill for cheaper and more abundant electricity is betraying his constituents in this era of increasingly serious fuel shortages.

Scrapping P. R.

MASSACHUSETTS should follow the good example of New York City, where the electorate recently outlawed Proportional Representation after long and unsatisfactory experience with this radical and confusing method of voting.

The people of New York City discovered that Proportional Representation opened the municipal government to Communist infiltration and allowed minorities to achieve unwarranted and dangerous amount of power.

None of our Massachusetts cities and towns wants a similarly unfortunate experience, certainly not at this time when Reds of the various hues and shades are striving mightily to dominate our schools and to over important institutions.

The law does not permit Bay State municipalities to repudiate Proportional Representation as New York City did.

The repudiation must be done for them in their behalf by the Legislature, which is the original mistake of admitting Proportional Representation to the Commonwealth.

Senators and Representatives who have faith in the provenly beneficial American system of majority government should give evidence of their feelings by sponsoring bills promptly banning this P. R. atrocity.

FROM TIME to time the achievements of some remarkable husbands have been reported here. Versatile matrimonial mates who can cook, sew, knit, handle all types of housework, who are experts in infant care, selectors and buyers of their wife's clothes and memory experts, never forgetting birthdays or anniversaries as well as being capable of those so-called "little attentions" so dear to the hearts of married women. Why, sir, we even mentioned a man who was so expert on a sewing machine he made all the clothes for his wife and children. Nevertheless, April Strickland Schramm, well-known professional ice skater, can do anything any husband mentioned here can do, and do it better. This is important. If true, Mr. Schramm should be immediately nominated for president of the "What a Man!" Club. Mrs. Schramm is the daughter of the celebrated Mabel Strickland, once the world's champion cowgirl.

PASSING BY: Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, celebrated football coach of the yesteryear. "Pop" was coach of the Carlisle Indians when Jim Thorpe played for the Redskins, but he says the greatest player he ever coached was Ernie Nevers of Stanford. Phil Regan, a cloying singer of sentimental ditties, Phil, who once pounded the pavements of Manhattan and Brooklyn as a policeman, is now the star attraction at the Hotel Plaza's Persian Room.

MEAT SHORTAGE: So there's going to be a meat shortage. Well, I am all prepared for it. I started sampling some of the available fish items recently and have enjoyed them immensely. As, for example, mountain trout, Boston scrod, lemon sole, scallops and baby lobster. Delicious, my friends, delicious!

business. Now that the long skirt style is gaining ground this place may enjoy increased trade from males who deplore the passing of the brevity in feminine attire. However, these scantily attired waitresses may not be much of an attraction to men who spent the summer by the seaside. They are in the position of the London bus conductor who was accused by a feminine passenger of staring at her legs as she boarded the high-stepped bus. The bus conductor said: "You're mistaken, madame, legs are no treat to me."

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—Who pays for the man's wedding ring? A—The man pays. He buys both the bands for the double ring ceremony. Only today a young woman at the office was proudly displaying a box containing a cute little wedding ring and a large one side by side. A romantic spectacle. When showing these rings to her unmarried feminine fellow workers the young lady was unable to restrain a highly triumphant expression. Q—What was the name of the film actress who after working on jungle location for the picture "Trader Horn" suffered from a tropical disease that cut short her career? A—Edwina Booth.

NO SMOKING: In some business offices men are permitted to smoke while working, but women are not. Many young women office workers view this situation with indignation. I have been asked to express an opinion as to it. I would say it all depends on what type of office it is. There are offices in which a smoke-filled atmosphere and the spectacle of a number of young women puffing on cigarets would appear out of place. In any event, I believe if women are not permitted to smoke in an office, men should not, either. I would suggest a smoking lounge to which the staff could adjourn at stated brief intervals.

THE BOWERY: There is a campaign to change the name of the Bowery. I am against it. I suggest the famous old thoroughfare be subjected to a clean-up campaign that will make it a section where business and the entertainment industry can thrive. A place where a man can bring his family and find some sources of innocent merriment at popular prices. In the early 1870's the Bowery was such a place. But then it began to slip. Charles M. Hoyt's song, "The Bowery! The Bowery! I'll Never Go There Any More," gave the reputation of the street a shove downward from which it never recovered.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Nov. 26—We have in the United States a few private associations, embracing roughly 10,000,000 citizens, which enforce laws and inflict punishments so harsh that no public government would undertake to impose them.

The Brooklyn Law Review, in an essay on "The Judicial Process in Labor Unions," some years ago referred to these bodies as "Infrastate Governments."

This was a study for Westbrook Pegler lawyers of the paradox of brutal totalitarian government carried on under the protection and political patronage of a national government which, at that very time, was interfering in the domestic affairs of Germany on the ground that Hitler's treatment of his chosen victims was undemocratic.

"Such infrastate governments are now exercising jurisdiction concurrently with the state itself, over millions of Americans and their families," the article said.

This was an understatement; the jurisdiction of the unions does not flow quite together with the government's jurisdiction.

It comes first in most matters. The unions come first in taxes and loyalty. The nation, state, city, family and church follow, not necessarily in that order.

And, until now, the national government and most of the state governments have bowed to this priority.

IN ONE OF the Congressional inquiries during the war, Congressman Edward Ebert of New Orleans drew from Harry Posner, a boss of the United Auto Workers of the CIO, the admission that in any crisis he would put the union's welfare before the safety of young American fliers who were fighting the enemy.

The United Auto Workers is the union of Walter Reuther, who, strangely, has been receiving a warm press lately because he has struck the now-popular attitude of defying the Communists.

Posner had used the name of James Harris in some phases of his career and was now known as Thomas V. de Lorenzo. He was of draft age, and a healthy, pugnacious fellow. But for a time during the war he received the deferment which the Roosevelt government granted to its own adherents who had the political duty of getting up the money for the party's campaigns and keeping the faceless nonentities properly docile. Mr. Ebert raised such a row over Posner's declaration that he would rather let an American flier die than sacrifice any interest of the United Auto Workers that, finally, it was found expedient to draft him.

UNTIL THE ADOPTION of the withholding tax, which is simply the old union checkoff under another title, the unions had first lien on the earnings of all those millions of workers.

If the worker didn't keep his dues paid up, and his assessments and shakedowns for clamorous tickets and the like, he found his card "pulled" when he came to work.

No matter how urgent the government's need of his skill in that which Roosevelt called the "war effort," the union's financial interest took precedence over the nation's peril.

That is still true, but the government has pulled up neck-and-neck with the unions in the sprint for the pay window to nick the worker's wages.

The government now collects the income tax by checkoff, but so does the union.

However, the government must do it by law, according to rates adopted by the elected representatives of the people of the United States. But the union's greed is limited only by the conscience of the unioners, who may be gangsters of the foulest kind. They may never have been elected at all.

JOHN L. LEWIS used to point out triumphantly that in some miners' villages the churches also took their tithe by checkoff. This was as false as it was true.

They did, but only by the worker's written consent and a man excluded for non-payment by one congregation could always find another church where he could hitch-hike his religion. He couldn't mooch his way with another union, though.

An intelligent person would have expected the union bosses to moderate their government in recent years. The people were sullen and the returns of the last Congressional election showed that they were furious.

Green, Murray, Tobin and Lewis were not even good politicians, much less labor statesmen.

EN ROUTE TO HOLLYWOOD. Nov. 26 (INS)—It couldn't happen to a nicer girl—Esther Williams gets Van Johnson plus Walter Pidgeon as her co-stars in "The Duchess of Idaho." Either one of these gents is a prize, so getting both of them in one picture should really let it rather up.

It looks like there's a lot of fun for everybody in this movie. Practically all of it will be filmed in Sun Valley right at the height of the season. Usually, these resort locations are shot out of season with actors shivering in supposedly hot climates and "smothering in chilly spots."

The story is still in the forlorn stage, with writers Dorothy Cooper and Jerry Davis concentrating on the famous winter resort activities. My friend, Joe Pasternak, produces, and come to think of it I wonder if he needs a spare columnist along on the trip? I've got the wangle and blues since my whirl in New York.

TALKED WITH Bob Hope long distance from London and he told me all our visiting stars had met Secretary of State George Marshall at the home of the American ambassador, Lewis Douglas. Bob seemed more serious than usual. He said he was going to Germany to do some shows for our soldiers, but would do that, this wonderful Hope guy.

I was still in the Stork Club when another long distance came through. Thinking maybe it was Bob again, I hurried to the telephone. Instead it was a "Mr. Williams," who said he wanted to correct me—it was Robin and Rainer who had written "Thanks for the Memory," and not Hoagy Carmichael.

Well, twice after that he called—each time with the same message. I guess Mr. Williams, who must have more nickels to spend than most people, was still celebrating Elizabeth's wedding!

THE PRODUCERS meeting in New York to sharpen the ax on studio Communists went into session Monday at noon and concluded Tuesday at 5 p. m. They wanted to get everything done so the year can be home for Thanksgiving.

They are faced with one problem. The laws are not uniform in the various states as regards Communists. But that won't keep the big boys from seeing that Hollywood is wiped clean of the scourge and that those with ideas harmful to the motion picture business are kept out once and for all.

TALKED with Henry Ginsberg, who arrived just before I left town. He told me Leo McCarey has one more picture to make at RKO before he goes to Paramount.

Henry is very happy that the deal includes "Good Sam." McCarey's last picture for Paramount, "Going My Way" made more money for Paramount than any picture ever released by that company.

LAST ROUNDUP on New York news: Irene Dunne was really the belle at the Farley wedding reception. She looked so pretty, I have never seen Mrs. Jim Farley looking so well. She has lost 30 pounds and was in a very becoming blue dress. Morton Downey, who is a close family friend, sang for the bride and groom, two attractive young people.

Alfred Hitchcock's 19-year-old daughter, Patricia, leaves for London next month to enroll in the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Micheline Presle, the French film actress, is en route to Hollywood. She's driving across the country so she can get a first-hand glimpse of America.

I am sorry to hear that little Jane Ball, Monte Proser's wife, has severe anemia. Monte is buying a home for her in Palm Springs, hoping the desert air will help her.

Dan Dailey arrived in New York the day I left. He had a happy reunion at the station with his parents, the Dan Daileys, Sr. They were a famous vaudeville team.

Thomas Bay, the Terrible Turk, is still in New York, but he has given all the night clubs the go-by and has done his dancing, dining and wooing in secluded places. He has resumed his attentions to Susan, once his most serious love. But Susie, who is studying voice intently, is refusing to give any heed to romance.

The "Torrid Turk" plans to drive back to California in two weeks to keep an engagement at Eagle-Lion with Brynne Foy. Turhan makes "The Spirituality" early next year, and after that goes to Italy to star in "Sons of the Musketeers." Arturo De Cordova, the favorite Mexican actor, is also pinned in.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (INS)—"So-Sounds—Like Rubbing-It-In Dept.: Our Metropolitan chief of police, Robert J. Barrett, has just instructed his coppers to detain all unconscious or semiconscious persons found on the streets of Washington.

Better go easy, chief! It's going to make a lot of State Department careerists late for work.

THE WAR ASSETS administration seems to be going in a little too heavy for sarcasm. It announces it will sell surplus property on certain of the more inaccessible Aleutian Islands without priorities because nobody wants to buy it anyway.

I RAN INTO Mr. Toney Betts, the eminent turf writer, at Bowie race track the other day and asked him if he could direct me to the cashiers' windows.

"Do you want to know for any specific reason?" asked Mr. Betts, "or are you just nosy?"

I replied, with native dignity, that I was just being forehand; that I would like to know in case I ever won a race. Mr. Betts, who has developed certain characteristics "from" being around horses so many years, whinnied that I should live so long.

We got discussing the vicissitudes of racing, and Mr. Betts asked if I had ever heard about Milo Shields, who used to train horses for the late Tom Pendergast.

I said, regretfully, that I had never heard of Mr. Shields, but that I had heard certain Republicans mention the late Mr. Pendergast in connection with a Mr. Truman.

"That is the same Pendergast," replied Mr. Betts. "I am not a political writer, but I have heard it stated around the tracks that he gave the President his start in politics out in Missouri. You pick up a lot of stuff around race tracks."

"You certainly do," I concurred. "And if you heard it, you will eventually amass a sufficient fortune to have yourself buried in Potter's Field."

"But this is on the level," persisted Mr. Betts. "Shortly after Mr. Truman became President, Milo Shields wrote him a letter for old times' sake, congratulating him. The President promptly wrote back."

"But Mr. Shields was undergoing one of the vicissitudes of horse racing of which we were speaking. And where do you think the letter from the White House; on the President's own stationery, was delivered to him?"

"In the tackroom at Narragansett track, where he was sleeping."

"Dear George: How am I to get my night's rest on INS' hard desk if your sophisticated Hollywood friends keep calling all night?"

"The last one called at 3:30 and again at 4. When he called the third time I just held the key and let him hang for ten minutes. Do you think the phone company will give me a cut?"

"It is now 5 a. m. and he hasn't called again but I can't go back to sleep."

Be more tolerant, Eddie. Remember, when it's 4 a. m. he's always cool at night in California.

THE GOOD OLD Federal Register discloses that the Department of Agriculture now has "bureaus" and "bureau chiefs." "Bureaus" from now henceforth will be known as "administrations" and "bureau chiefs" as "administrators."

I told the little woman this would make it tough on us Washington reporters because we could no longer refer to a Department of Agriculture official as a bureaucrat and there didn't seem to be any such word as administrator.

A SHAKEUP IN THE HIGHEST BRACKETS at the Veterans Administration's New England Branch Office is now almost certain, according to information received from Washington by officers of veterans organizations . . .

The first shock that Washington got was upon learning that a high VA official here had blasted several members of Congress and 50 per cent of the population of Boston . . . The second was upon learning that dental funds were badly needed here, with no word from the Branch Office to that effect . . . The third was upon learning that (according to Congressman Wigglesworth) the Branch Office had forced its subsidiary offices in Boston, Manchester, Portland, White River Jct., Hartford and Providence to cut personnel and expenditures 10 per cent, whereas Washington had ordered a cut of only 6 1/2 per cent.

HIAULING IN THE NET: Wonder if its athletic authorities realize what bad publicity Harvard has been getting throughout the country in showing up the officials in movies after the Virginia and Yale defeats. Even Harvard men dislike it . . . When we went to school, the human body, chemically speaking, was valued at 98 cents. The Wall Street Journal reports that at present inflated prices it is worth $31. Thinking of selling? . . . One of the few men who have won the Medal of Honor in peacetime is dead in New York at the age of 63. He is Frank Crilly, Navy diver, who won the medal while salvaging the submarine S-4 off Provincetown in 1928. But Frank told us years ago that he considered his greatest feat was his dive of 306 feet at Pearl Harbor in 1916. It permanently affected his hearing and changed his voice to a hollow, resonant tone.

FLIPPING THE PAGES of the notebook: Buddy Rogers informs us that the Duke of Windsor, who was the 8th Edward, refers to the 7th Edward simply as "my grandfather." Gertrude Lawrence told us her side of what happened at the Opera House that night of her "Lady in the Dark" broadcast. "My dress caught in the heel of my shoe, and the hem tore off," she said. "I naturally asked the men for a pin. You know, in England, men carry pins stuck in the bottom corners of their vests. I supposed American men did that, too." She didn't know that the

FROM THE BACKS of ENVELOPES: Raymond MacGillivray of Arlington is the only French war bride of World War I to become head of a veterans organization auxiliary. She is national president of the Marine Corps League. Her husband fought in the Sixth Marines in France, and her son is in the Seventh Marines on Guadalcanal . . . Gov. Horace A. Hildreth of Maine wants Bostonians to know that his state has 19,665,000 acres untouched by the fires which blackened 200,000 acres . . . The North and South Stations handle more than 50,000,000 passengers a year . . . Terror Department Boris Karloff is here in three films, one at the Keith Memorial and two at the Trans-Lux . . . Leo Herra of Charlestown, who runs an elevator at police headquarters, was only a few years away when Ernie Pyle was killed on Ie Shima, and saw his body carried off.

SCRIBBLINGS ON BITS of PAPER: The annual income of New England's recreation industry is $316,000,000, and this section has vacation lodgings for 315,598 persons in hotel-tourist homes and cabins, and boys' and girls' camps . . . Plymouth's Pilgrim Hall, which closes Sunday until spring, has had its biggest year since the 20's, with more than 20,000 visitors . . . Draw your own conclusions: The Veterans Administration can't (at present) anyway return $1,500,000,000 owed veterans in insurance refunds, but has overpaid veterans $35,000,000 by mistake in educational subsistence checks.

NOW, SCRAPING the bottom of the barrel: Sam Williston VFW service officer says: "There is too much secrecy and too many obstacles placed in the way of the veteran obtaining information as to why he did not receive his check" . . . Roy Lane, who came to the Music Box direct from the St. Louis municipal light opera, would like to contact Larry Hennault, an aspiring young newsman with whom he served at Fort Knox, Ky. Bob Allen, the war correspondent, told a Boston gadling that according to Gen. Patton most generals fight wars the way the last one should have been fought but wasn't . . . John Howard was born in England, but Elhu Yale was born practically in our Pemberton sq. . . At a veterans meeting the other night, we heard the chief speaker spend most of his time praising a congressman, but nobody, in two hours of speech-making, mentioned the disabled war hero.

Versatile Kaye Booms 'Mitty' at Keith Memorial

By PEGGY DOYLE

Samuel Goldwyn's new Danny Kaye-starring, Technicolor, tune-filled, Goldwyn Girl-paved production, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," at Keith Memorial calls to mind Ethel Merman's explicit estimate without the aid of the formidable Mister Gallup and his myriad galloping poll-takers. But this was all before Kaye moved into "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty" and began living a succession of day dreams as mad . . . well, as mad as Brooklyn's Danny-boy himself.

Just make it, she used to warble, a double old-fashioned. "Then there was a terse directive about skipping the fruit-salad, the biters, the sugar, the ice, just making it a double shot of unsullied bourbon.

The way Miss M. feels about old-fashioned, most of his incurable devotees feel about Madman Kaye. For all of us, producer Goldwyn can leave out the Technicolor, the songs (except the Sylvia fine-dreamed up Kaye originals), the Goldwyn Girls just so long as he permits free rein to Danny Kaye's incredible versatility.

That is the consensus so far as your film reporter is able to

If you are a Thurber fan, nuff said. If not, this is the celebrated short story by James Thurber, one of our top ranking humorists, concerning a midget-sized character from Perth Amboy, N. J., who when life passed him by embarked on a succession of secret, hairbreadth adventures via day dreaming.

Danny Kaye is right up Thurber's Indian rope-ladder as the unheroic dream-boy who dreamed himself into the most fantastic adventures as a typhoon-conquering sea captain a surgeon who performed a no-can-do operation et cetera.

It is this department's opinion that the real-life spy pilot dubbed into the Thurber-inspired script is added baggage. Beautiful Virginia Mayo as the real-life sweetheart is completely exempt from this criticism, however, on account of she is really developing as an actress.

'Green Dolphin Street' Held Emotionally Bleak

Such spectacular effects as a rafter-shaking earthquake and a bloody Maori uprising in New Zealand must suffice for the emotion and vitality that are missing from Metro's film transcription of the prize-winning Elizabeth Goudge novel, "Green Dolphin Street."

Now tenancing Loew's twin screens, Metro's lavish but emotionally bleak production is over-long and underdone. Such come-hither names as Lana Turner, Van Johnson, Richard Hart and Donna Reed are spelled out on the State and Orpheum marquees.

The supporting cast is headed by such distinguished character performers as Edmund Gwenn, Dame May Whitty, Frank Morgan and Gladys Cooper. But though the latter turn in honest, persuasive characterizations the starring foursome, frankly handicapped by Samson Raphaelson's flaccid script and Miss Goudge's overupholstered romancing, never achieve any warmth or dimensional quality.

Miss Turner, as the proud and domineering Marianne Patourel, and Miss Reed, as her gentle, tender-hearted sister, Marguerite, both love William Ozanne, a diamond in the rough played by Richard Hart, who is destined to marry the wrong girl.

She would be, of course, Marianne, who doesn't know until years after the marriage that it was Marguerite whom Ozanne sought in marriage in a letter to their destiny-thwarting father.

But don't think it isn't rugged going for Marianne, whose baby is born in the midst of a violent and ear-shattering earthquake and who survives that only to be a near-victim of a Maori uprising.

The grieving Marguerite meanwhile nurses her dying mother and father and finds her vacation as a nun. But despite the passing of many years and tragedies endured, the sisters manage to retain their unlined youthful beauty.

There is one tasteless scene in which Marguerite, making her vows as a nun, keeps darting coquettish glances at her brother-in-law, supposedly to assure him of her spiritual serenity. You can be sure that Dame May's authoritative mother superior would not have tolerated such frivolous conduct.

Smart Set 90 Dinner Guests

By BETTY ALDEN

MADAMOISELLE BEATRICE LEYDET, debutante daughter of M. and Mme. Bruno Leydet of Cambridge and Osterville is making her debut tonight at a dinner party for 90 guests at the Chilton Club. The dinner precedes the Debutante Assembly at the Hotel Somerset.

Daughter of a French father and American mother who was Dorothy Lindsey of Boston, "Pussy" Leydet is a graduate of Winsor School and a fluent linguist. She is now a freshman at Wellesley and is a member of the Chilton Club and provisional member of the Junior League and Vincent Club.

For her debut she is wearing a gown of pale yellow and silver brocade and carrying an old-fashioned bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her mother is wearing gold brocade with orchids. One of the guests at M. and Mme. Anne Simonds-Leydet's table will be Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell who was a close friend of Pussy's grandmother Mrs. William Lindsey of Boston.

Anne Simonds-Leydet

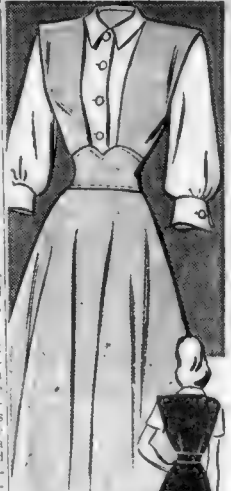

AT THE REHEARSAL of the Debutante Assembly the 90 or more debutantes who are to be presented in the Louis XIV ballroom of the Somerset Hotel this evening, were instructed in the formalities of the midnight grand march. Escorting their fathers or an older male member of the family, the girls will walk through an aisle formed by the ushers and will be presented to the sponsors. Each girl is to receive a 1947 gold four leaf clover charm as a memento of the Hub's first Thanksgiving Eve Assembly.

Among the many guests at the assembly will be debutante Mary Cumner of Cohasset, who is coming home from Sweet Briar College. Her guests will be Polly Harrison of Dayton, O., and Dora Shaw of New York, her former classmates at Madeira and now freshmen at Smith. Katharine Hill is returning from Vassar for the ball. Jocelyn Smith from Mt. Holyoke, Constance Yerxa from Vassar, Susan Williams from Bryn Mawr, Phyllis Jones from Bennington, Barbara Knox Hall from Colby Junior College, and others will be Anne Simonds, Sheila Cordingley with her guest; Caroline Hausser of Philadelphia, Emily Peck, Sally Ray, Barbara Beatley, Elizabeth Leonard, Joan Fitzgerald and her Mt. Holyoke classmate Ellen Clayton, Edith Rotch, Jane Kennard, Claire Reggio, Nancy Casey, Louise Crowninshield, Doris Chambers, Anne Brine, Fay Dabney and Cordelia MacPherson.

Among the many knights of the stag line will be Gilbert King Jr., James Russell Lowell, Jr., Hollis L. Robbins, John C. Lee, Stephen M. Root, Kennedy Middendorf, Howard B. Sprague, Jr., Richard B. Hovey, Lewis S. Dabney.

Mistrial in Case Of Missing Jap Gold

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26 (AP)—A federal court jury was dismissed early today after deliberating eight and one half hours and failing to reach a verdict in the case of William K. Evans, Santa Barbara, Cal., manufacturer and former U. S. Army lieutenant-colonel, charged with embezzling $106,000 in Japanese gold. Judge Peirson M. Hall declared a mistrial and ordered the case placed on the calendar for Dec. 8 to be set for a new trial. Government attorneys accused Evans of taking the Japanese gold coins when he went with the occupation forces to Formosa in 1945.

Make it a G. H. Christmas— with 100 (count 'em) wonderful ideas

Look to the December issue of Good Housekeeping for ideas to make it the loveliest Christmas ever in your home. Original ideas. Workable ideas. Typical Good Housekeeping ideas. Like these, for instance...

1. For your Christmas buffet table greens and silver balls (see picture below).

2-9. Make it look like Christmas in every corner of your home! See pages 75-77 of the new Good Housekeeping.

10. Nine ways to use your Christmas toilet water, on page 178.

11. Your Christmas tree. Timely tips from the Good Housekeeping Institute. (Page 141.)

12. Toys to make. Gay velvet animals. See page 204.

13. Raincoat for giving, on page 211 —a galardine beauty that's gotten honors in our textile laboratory investigations.

14-19. Handmade and charming. Make these gifts in a twinkling (well, almost!) —a sewing, knitting carryall (from a bicycle basket), an original album, and so on down your Christmas list. See pages 78-79.

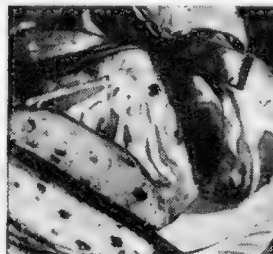

20. Christmas music. All about Handel's Messiah, the most famous of all Christmas music. See page 4 in this month's Good Housekeeping.

21. Everyone gets a Christmas stocking. Make these gay stockings in minutes (Good Housekeeping gives you easy-to-follow directions). On page 210.

22. For teen-age party-goers: Read "Party of the First Part," page 12 in the December issue—with sage advice on how to be a party's greatest asset.

23-76. Here's glorious good eating for the whole holiday season! (See pages 133-146.) Menus for every occasion... a teen-agers' party; Christmas Eve dinner; dinner for The Day itself; ever-ready snacks for drop-in guests; New Year's Day dinner with a super dessert climax. Simplified planning, in Good Housekeeping fashion—planning that remembers your leftovers and uses them in glamorous and thrifty ways.

Santa Claus' pack never carried more delights than this month's G. H. food pages!

Just for instance, a Christmas Gift Coffee-cake to tie with a bright red ribbon (color and how-to-do-it pictures on pages 134 and 135); Sugared Cranberries; Christmas Fudge; a very special turkey stuffing (and step-by-step pictures that could teach anybody how to truss a turkey); and a new sauce for cold meat that will make you wish you'd roasted a double-size bird!

And NUTS! Did you ever hear of such marvelous things to do with them? Chocolate-Nut Angel Pie... Butter Brickle... Orange Conserve... Praline Crunch (try that on vanilla ice cream—it's pure delight!). 21 nut ideas in all.

Best of all, there's a can't-go-wrong charm in every one of these food ideas and recipes. For every one has been tried out in the Good Housekeeping kitchens. Every one has been called Wonderful! by our jury of finicky tasters.

77. Lights for outdoors and in. All about new kinds of Christmas lights. Page 236.

78. New Holiday Hair-Dos—with an eye to how your man will eye you. See them on pages 175-177.

79. Keep the small-fry entertained while you're helping Santa Claus wrap packages. They'll love the story of Laura the Llama on page 91 of December Good Housekeeping.

80-86. Christmas Robes on pages 58-65. (Like all G. H. fashions, they've been investigated in our Textile Laboratories—proved Good Investments for long wear and safe cleaning.)

87. News about Lamps on page 152 —to read before you choose one for a gift.

88-94. Gifts for the Young-and-Gay. Gifts with pint-size price tags. On pages 54-55.

95. To make it Christmas on an invalid's tray. See page 258.

96-97. Read two heart-warming Christmas stories—"The Miracle Tree," and "Days of Grace"—when you're taking time off from your holiday preparations.

98. Festive clothes for holiday parties. Fairy-tale-princess evening dresses with cloud-drift skirts. Hooded evening wraps—priced under $40.

99. Slips to choose—and to avoid. Good Housekeeping's made a thorough study of slips—how they fit, how they wash, how they wear. Read the article on page 142. Included is a list of brands accepted for advertising in Good Housekeeping, brands which have met all our exacting wash-and-wear requirements.

100. The true Christmas feeling you'll find in Margery Sharp's sensitively written "The Greater Happiness." Read it aloud to the family, and think of Christmas giving, and receiving, in a new way.

Christmas—and all year round!

You might think, from this preview of the December Good Housekeeping, that this was a very special holiday issue of our magazine.

Actually, you'll find the same wealth of helpful information in every issue of Good Housekeeping. And because every word of homemaking advice we give you is backed by our own thorough investigation and expert knowledge, we are able to make this pledge:

That at no time, and not for any reason or any profit, will any page in Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

Schoolboy King In Thanksgiving Pigskin Contests

By JACK CONWAY

SCHOOLBOY FOOTBALL will reach the highest peak in its history in Eastern Massachusetts when 300,000 persons attend 53 different Thanksgiving Day games, according to Mike Gillooly and Arthur Sullivan, talented young writers for the American-Record. The anticipated attendance will be 50,000 greater than that of a year ago.

There has been a steady pickup in crowds at schoolboy games. At times the school athletic authorities have wished there was some way they could use a magic wand to increase the number of seats by 5000 overnight. The Manning Bowl at Lynn, which cares for more than 20,000 persons, has been found too small for some of the games this fall.

The schoolboys, like the colleges, have their traditional games. Boston English and Latin will play in the Harvard Stadium, and it is expected that from 25,000 to 30,000 persons will attend the contest.

Lynn Classical, the high scoring team of the year, and Lynn English, which has been scored upon only three times this season, will battle in the Manning Bowl.

Dorchester High vs. Commerce and East Boston vs. South Boston will set the stage for the double-header at Fenway Park. This twin attraction is expected to attract 10,000.

There will be seats for only 9990 persons at Gillis Stadium, Medford, when Malden takes on Medford. I presume that several hundred enterprising youths, managing to get into the Stadium without taking the trouble of going through the regular entrances, will bring the crowd to over 10,000.

High school football goes best in the outside cities and towns where the local gridiron heroes frequently have as much standing as does the stars of Notre Dame when they walk along the main drag at South Bend, Indiana.

Bay State Has Best Schoolboy Coaches

MASSACHUSETTS has the best schoolboy football coaches in the country. The eleven, that will participate in the Thanksgiving Day games, will display the results of good coaching.

Colleges in all parts of the country have been trying to get stars like Harry Agganis of Lynn Classical to enter their institutions. It should be unnecessary for New England boys to go to the Midwest or South to gain their college educations. Players like Agganis should be welcomed to New England colleges. Incidentally, John Curley, athletic director at Boston College, had a chat with Agganis recently in the lobby of the Lenox, and it is hoped that the subject of the conversation was in regard to the Lynn Classical star going to the Heights.

FRED BELISLE of the Holy Cross athletic department sends me word it is "impossible" to purchase any tickets for the HC-BC football game which will be played at Braves Field on Saturday afternoon. This ruling applies to the Boston press as well as to Jawn Public. There can be no cry of favoritism as the tickets were sold under allotment to the student body and alumni.

Alabama Family Billy Carey's Guests

WRITING OF SELLOUTS, I am always reminded of a happening at the Sharkey-Stribling bout at Miami Beach, Fla. The early sale for the contest, apart from choice ring-side seats, had been slow. The arena had been pitched on a municipal field, and Promoters Jack Dempsey and Bill Carey feared there would be many empty seats on the night of the contest.

A few days before the bout the crowd started to enter the Miami area from all sections of the South with the result the arena was sold out early on the night of the contest. As I approached the main entrance to the arena, I saw a man walking back to a banged-up flivver in which there was a woman and four children.

"I can't get any tickets," said the man addressing the woman who I later found out was his wife. "The place is a sellout."

I entered into conversation with the man and found he had driven from his home in a small town in Alabama to Miami Beach in the expectation of seeing his fistic pride, Young Stribling, battle Sharkey. I asked the man to remain where he was for a few minutes. I hurried into the arena and brought out Bill Carey, president of the New York Garden.

"You have five special guests from Alabama, Bill," I said. "Take these people into the arena and seat them some place near the ring. After riding all the way from Alabama, they are entitled to special consideration."

Carey, a big hearted type of man, followed my suggestion with the result that the visitors from

Joe Makes Flicker For Kids

POMPTON LAKES, N. J.—Joe Louis, in training here for his world heavyweight title defense against Jersey Joe Walcott at Madison Square Garden Dec. 5, has taken time out to make a movie short as part of a campaign to combat juvenile delinquency.

Joe spent more than four hours under the klieg lights, and when the director had finished getting all the shots he wanted the champion remarked that the workout was as tough as any 10-round fight.

The picture will be shown in youths' clubs throughout the United States and Canada. In giving his message to the youngsters, Joe said:

"My first rule has always been honesty with myself, with my opponent, and with the people who make boxing possible by coming to see me fight."

"This means adequate training to get in the best possible shape and, once in the ring, fighting all the time. I train hard and I fight hard. And I always try to fight clean and fair."

"My next rule is to be without fear. If I am in a tough spot I fight my way out of it."

While training here, Louis is always interested in having youngsters at his daily workouts. Hardly a day passes that a class of school boys, a delegation from a Y. M. C. A. or a Boy's Club, or some soldiers or sailors are not present at the camp.

Joe is always patient, talks to the boys and poses for pictures with them before he starts his workout.

Sometimes young amateur boxers come to him for pointers. Joe enjoys teaching them some of the fundamentals which he himself learned in his career.

Boxing Commission Adopts Safety Rules

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission, which recently suspended the boxing licenses of 16 fighters and the revocation of three other licenses, continued its sweeping reorganization of the sport at an "emergency meeting" held this morning at commission headquarters.

"The suspension of fighters alone is not enough," stated Commissioner of Public Safety John F. Stokes. "We have designed legislation to correct, from the beginning, many of the bad points in boxing administration."

The boxing commission first gave intense thought to the reorganization of the boxing regulations following a series of articles printed in the Boston Evening American a year ago.

"We wish to protect the fighter from himself and over-zealous fight managers," stated Commissioner Sam Flaksman. "The fight fan, too, is due every consideration regarding the fitness of the matches, the condition of boxers and the terms of the match. We will accomplish our end."

Hop Rielop, Holy Cross football scout as well as a boxing commissioner, was firm in his stand that "fighters must submit to immediate examinations following knockouts."

"Our present proposal is to have any fighter, knocked out in a contest, report for immediate examination by Boxing Commission doctors who will work in close co-operation with leading X-ray specialists."

"No fighter will be allowed back in the ring unless he has been pronounced physically fit by the commission physicians."

"Buddy" Hayes, featherweight was knocked out by Pat Brady in a recent fight. Hayes was unconscious for close to 25 minutes following the bout. He was kept on the inactive list for six weeks before the Commission doctors again pronounced him "fit to fight."

Matchmakers, too, will come under the direct supervision of the Boxing Commission. Previously matchmakers had not been licensed.

"It is the duty of the Commission to supervise the activities of matchmakers," said Flaksman. "The matchmaker, being the person who cards the fights, is the most important member of the fight organization. Sometimes he acts impetuously and without due thought to the possibilities of injuries in a match."

"Sanitary conditions surrounding fight clubs and fight arenas are abhorable," Rielop stated. "We intend to compel every fight arena in the State of Massachusetts to install an efficient first aid room. The Boston Garden has one, but it is not used as it should be. Mechanics Building, for example, lacks everything in the way of sanitary facilities due a fighter."

Recently a battered and bruised fighter was carried from the ring at the Garden and brought to an enclosed, miniature sized room which was walled with hissing steam pipes. The boy was unconscious. That was no place to bring a boy in such a battered condition. The first aid room was available but no one thought to use it.

CLYDE W. BENHAM* SWITCHED TO CALVERT

A SALESMAN with an impressive record, Clyde Benham says, "I switched to Calvert when I discovered it's a smoother, mellower whiskey than a costlier brand. I once thought I preferred. Business associates agree!"

If you sensibly prefer an agreeably mellow whiskey, switch to Calvert. Greater blending experience has favored Calvert with a more congenial smoothness, a more amiable taste, we believe, than other whiskeys anywhere near the price!

PUTTING In his well-kept garden is Clyde's spare-time hobby. "Seems I get more done around the place when I know a tall Calvert highball is awaiting me. I'm glad I switched—it's such an agreeable-tasting reward!"

3 School Grid Titles At Stake Turkey Day

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Three divisional championships in the schoolboy football ranks will be definitely settled tomorrow morning in traditional rivalries throughout the Eastern sector of the state but the Class A crown—significant of the Eastern supremacy—will still be a debatable subject among the fans.

Medford's undefeated Mustangs have tacked the bunting to the Gillis Stadium flagpole, mathematically, but North Shore rooters concede nothing as far as the Lynn Classical club is concerned.

It mattered little, according to the figures, whether Medford could come through on top against Malden before a sell-out crowd of 10,000 fans in the Thanksgiving Day feature. Coach Tom O'Connor's boys lifted the flag beyond reach against Chelsea two weeks ago. Classical, however, still had a rugged Lynn English to handle at Manning Bowl before an overflow 20,000—and the North Shore will never forget that 27-27 count of last year.

Both will be very much alive for a Bowl bid for a post season game, although neither will admit that any negotiations of any type are under way. So it's very important that they come through with final triumphs.

Medford, like Holy Cross, may have a new coach in another season. And for that very reason, the boys will be out to present Coach O'Connor with an undefeated season as a farewell gift. They'll be favored, behind such offensive operatives as Tom Kelly and Gino Paglucia, to make this offering possible but there's always the possibility of a Malden upset.

Coach Warren McGuirk's Golden Tornado has settled down since a Brockton setback but they're capable of coming to life. Malden teams have done it before. They could turn the tables again.

At Manning Bowl, Lynn, Classical and English will be offering a dream game of offensive football. So far this season, Classical's theory of success has been to score more often than the opposition.

At Arlington vs. Melrose, the Mr. Schoolboy Football, and speedster Georgie Bullard have kept this policy alive. Classical has been outjumped at the start more than once this season but they're ruled on the strength of their versatile punching power.

English, hardly as strong as last year, knows what it means to pucker up a challenge. They set a new high in schoolboy standards in that wild-scoring spree last Thanksgiving Day and with Whelan as the big cog.

Breadon to Accompany Hannegan to Meetings

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WED., NOV. 26, 1947

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26 (INS).—Robert E. Hannegan returned to Washington today to wind up affairs as Postmaster General of the United States before beginning a career as a baseball executive.

Hannegan is the new president and major stockholder of the St. Louis Cardinals—winners of nine National League pennants and six World Series titles.

The retiring Postmaster-General heads a syndicate which purchased the Cardinals from Sam Breadon for an estimated $3,500,000, biggest baseball financial deal in history.

Hannegan's partner in the deal is Fred M. Saigh, Jr., St. Louis attorney, who on occasions has represented syndicates in real estate deals. Saigh will be vice-president, treasurer and principal minority stockholder.

Asked to name National League teams which will be the Cardinals' chief contenders in the 1948 pennant scramble, Hannegan replied:

"All seven clubs."
He said the club's present personnel and staffs of its sixteen minor league teams will be retained. That means, he added, that Eddie Dyer will continue as manager of the parent club.

Hannegan, 44 years old and a native St. Louisian, emphasized the Cardinals will remain in St. Louis. The new board of directors of which he is chairman is composed of St. Louis.

Breadon will stay on in an advisory capacity for a while at Hannegan's request, Hannegan said:

"I will attend the forthcoming minor league meetings in Miami, Fla., and the major league meetings in New York, with Sam Breadon at my side."

Hannegan resigned as Postmaster-General effective December 1 and announced he is "disassociating" himself from all politics, including the post of Democratic national committeeman from Missouri. He formerly was a star athlete at St. Louis University.

Schmidt Back On B's Defense

Milton Schmidt, All-Star National Hockey center will play a defense position for the Boston Bruins in their two road games tonight and tomorrow night at Chicago and Detroit.

Coach Dit Clapper made known his plans as the Bruins left for Chicago. Clapper intends to have Billy Taylor center the first line with Woody Dumart and Joe Carveth on the wings. Don Gallinger will center between Pete Babando and Eddie Sandford, and Ken Smith will be the pivot for Ed Harrison and Wally Wilson.

This is a temporary arrangement made necessary by the injuries to the Bruins' two good defense men, Jack Crawford and Murray Henderson. Both are likely to be out of the game with the Leafs at the Garden next Sunday night, as well as the two road games, but the Bruins expect to have both back in the lineup when the Chicago Blackhawks come here next Wednesday.

Schmidt went back on defense against Canadiens last Sunday after Crawford had been hurt and, versatile star that he is, played a flashy game. Clapper said he would not hesitate to use Schmidt for a turn or two with his regular wingers, Dumart and Carveth, but he does not want to overwork his star player.

The game with the Blackhawks tonight marks the third time this season the teams have met. The Bruins won previous games by scores of 3-2 in Boston and 2-1 in Chicago. The Bruins lost early games with Detroit, the scores 2-1 in Detroit and 3-2 in Boston. The Wings are finally flying these days and put 17 goals into the Chicago net in their home and home series last week-end.

The Bruins went west with a chance to regain first place from Detroit tonight.

Mather of Medford Named On Small College 'All' Team

By JAMES W. BAGLEY

International News Service Sports Writer

The experts and coaches of smaller colleges in New England ran into plenty of difficulty helping International News Service choose the All-New England small college football team this season.

The more than 27 coaches and so-called experts would agree on only two players for the mythical "All" team.

The two players are Don Bestor, Trinity (Ct.), center, and Bruce Mather, quarterback, of the undefeated and untied University of New Hampshire eleven, which plays Toledo in the Glass Bowl game Dec. 6.

Unlike the larger colleges, New Hampshire, Trinity, Wesleyan, Bates, Williams and other small schools came up with a wealth of football material. Many of these boys probably never would have been heard of on the grid-

"CHAIN GANG" . . . California undergrads serve two days at hard labor for pre-game California-USC ruckus which included setting of bonfires. Police judge Oliver Young didn't think it funny. He sentenced Robert Solinsky, Robert Remenperger and Ralph Hill to work on Berkeley's odoriferous rubbish dump. The boys are shown starting to work.

Harlow Calls Ken O'Donnell's Election 'Wonderful Choice'

It's becoming a family affair—the O'Donnell heirarchy at Harvard. For the second time in three years, one of the O'Donnell clan, another son of the famed Cleo who coached Holy Cross grid teams from 1921 to 1930, was elected to the Crimson captaincy in a meeting of 39 Harvard lettermen last night. Twenty-three year old Ken O'Donnell is the newest Harvard football leader.

The slim quarterback, whose appearance belies the 160-pound weight listing on the program, is without a doubt the quietest man on the Crimson squad but also the most popular. His election which came as no surprise was heralded by Dick Harlow as "a wonderful choice."

The former Army pilot collected a helmetful of citations for his tour of duty in the European Theatre and is rated as one of the best pass defenders in Eastern football circles. This is attested by the fact that last year he led the national parade in both aerial interceptions and yards gained from pass interceptions while this season he was among the top 10 in the country.

Married to his childhood sweetheart, the youngest of the O'Donnells learned his football at Mt. St. James when his father was coaching the Crusaders. While merely a toddler in three cornered pants, Kenny, whom his father always considered too small to play football, was as regular at daily practice sessions as were the members of the Crusader squad.

His brother Cleo had been captain-elect of the Harvard squad before he entered the service and on his return in 1946 was chosen to assume the leadership of which he had been deprived by his three years in the Army.

Report Walker Going to Bucs

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 26 (INS).—Frank (Trader Horn) McKinney, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Branch Rickey, baseball David Harum and head of the Brooklyn Dodgers, have another deal on the fire.

McKinney and Rickey met recently at McKinney's home in Indianapolis. Today McKinney said any of 10 players on either team might be involved. He added:

"Rickey mentioned tentatively every man on the Brooklyn ball club except Jackie Robinson, Pete Reiser and Ralph Branca. "I mentioned everyone on the Pirate Club except Ralph Kiner, Wally Westlake and Frankie Gustine."

Leahy Sees All-America Innovation

By FRANK LEAHY
Head Coach, Notre Dame University

Tomorrow being Thanksgiving Day this seems an appropriate time to suggest a more bountiful division of All-America honors. The rule permitting unlimited substitution allows the coach to place two distinct teams on the field during the game—offensive and defensive.

Therefore, it seems only logical that All-America honors should be divided between offensive and defensive players. They are equally essential to the success of a team.

Notre Dame's Russell (Pete) Ashbaugh is a good example of the fairness of naming two teams. Ashbaugh, a former B-29 pilot, is sure and deadly on defense. Since he is used almost exclusively on defense it would seem only fair that he be judged from that viewpoint.

Johnny Lujack is another good example. His superb offensive talents make it necessary in today's swift game to utilize him almost exclusively in advancing the ball. Lujack is also one of the finest defensive backs we've ever had the pleasure of watching.

The country is filled with players in the same category; men who are specialists because the modern game demands specialization. Therefore, they should receive full credit for carrying out the assignment given them.

This idea of the possibility of naming offensive and defensive All-America teams is purely a personal one and is offered merely as a suggestion. At least Monday morning quarterbacks might have fun with it.

Television may also be put to good use by coaches. Think of tuning in a pocket-size television set and studying plays from an elevated angle. At present most coaches place spotters in press boxes or some other elevated spot and receive spot information by telephone.

Getting back to unlimited substitutions, we read that Pop Warner disapproved of the rule at a meeting of the New York Football Writers' Ass'n. Lou Little expressed himself as favoring the rule. We agree with Lou. The new rule permits more boys to get into the game and the rest periods cut down the element of injury.

Mind if we get personal just a moment? We'd like to reiterate our intention of staying as coach at Notre Dame unless our presence should become embarrassing to the university. We sincerely hope that day never arrives.

We like Pennsylvania to take Cornell in one of the big games of tomorrow's rather limited schedule. We also like Arkansas over Tulsa; Cincinnati over Miami (Ohio); Texas over Texas A. & M. and Utah over Utah State, which should be a close one.

Hunters Avoid Does, Fawns To Preserve Deer in Maine

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Deer hunters have become conservation-conscious in Maine, according to reports from the Pine Tree State, where far more bucks than does and fawns have been bagged. This is most encouraging, after hearing tales for years of the wanton slaughter of young or female specimens.

We are also glad to note that accidents have been kept to a minimum to date. Several sportsmen have been lost in the deep woods, however, and all are advised never to venture afield without compasses, matches and axes. And as a better precaution, engage a reliable guide.

The Maine deer kill is heavy this year. Listen to what Charles Harriman, warden supervisor, Mallett, in Arrostook County, has to say:

"One registration station checked as many deer in six days as during the entire season last year. Most of the deer were bucks. Several of them weighed 250 pounds or better."

Warden Supervisor Raymond Morse, Ellsworth, reports that four Massachusetts gunners saw 105 deer during a week of hunting in Township 16.

From South Paris, Warden Wayne Lindsay sends word that the Fryeburg station registered 77 deer in one week of the sport, adding that the total for this station last autumn was 100 animals. OUTDOOR O.O.'s: Maine's second "shift" of the split duck season runs from Dec. 2-13, and the feathered targets have been arriving in large flights at Merry-meeting Bay . . . Rabbits are plentiful, too, scores of beagles and their masters ready to go forth as soon as the deer season ends Dec. 1st . . . As we stated last week, the Bay State duck shooting picture had been painted in too bright a hue after opening day. The fact is that the sport is not any better than it was last fall; the birds are just as scarce, with more gunners than ever, most of 'em squeezing their triggers when the ducks are hardly in sight. Perhaps it's too bad that shells are numerous now . . . Strangest hunting accident we've heard about occurred in Idaho, where one dog shot another. Seems that two ninnogs had left their LOADED guns in the car with the canines, and curiosity resulted in the death of one dog.
